WALSH PRODUCES LETTERS TO SHOW ROCKEFELLER DIRECTED COLORADO AGENTS IN STRIKE

GOVERNOR OF COLORADO SAID TO HAVE SENT MESSAGES AS WRITTEN BY OIL MAN'S AGENT

Correspondence Discovered by Chairman of Industrial Relations Inquiry Refutes Young Rockefeller's Testimony at Gotham Hearing

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 24.—That John D. Rockefeller, Jr., instead of being ignorant of the strike situation in Colorado, as he pleaded at a recent hearing in New York, really personally directed the fight on the coal miners, is the belief today of Chairman Frank P. Walsh of the industrial relations committee, following discovery of correspondence between Rockefeller and the officials of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company.

The startling correspondence which came to the commission from 26 Broadway will reopen the whole case, according to Walsh.

One of the documents implied that Rockefeller had dictated the Colorado governor's letter to President Wilson, asking for troops. While Rockefeller had told the commission at New York and also the congressional investigating committee that he had kept his hands off the strike situation and had no knowledge of conditions, Mr. Walsh says the new evidence indicates that he was the directing mind throughout of the struggle, that he exercised a personal influence that extended even to the state house at Denver.

The letters and telegrams also indicate, Mr. Walsh said, that Rockefeller withheld from the labor department at Washington information requested by Secretary Wilson, who was attempting to avert the strike. That Rockefeller knew from his own agents that the Colorado Fuel and Iron company controlled prices and fixed working conditions at the mines, that Rockefeller was always in close touch with the developments of the fight receiving full reports by wire and mail, that proposals for settlement were always sent to him first for consideration and that he notified the mine executives that he had refused Secretary Wilson's offer for mediation and promised to support the Colorado Fuel and Iron company officials to the end.

Prepared for Strike

The commission has made a part of its record, Mr. Walsh said, "a mass of correspondence not only showing that the Rockefeller family were personally in constant touch with every phase of the Colorado coal strike situation, but that they knew the strike was coming and were prepared for it. We have letters of Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., of J. F. Welborn, president of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, of L. M. Bowers, chairman of the executive committee of Staar Murphy, personal representative of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and of Ivy Lee, his publicity agent, which make plain that they were taking the Rockefeller agents in Colorado in the great strike, in which men, women and children lost their lives, was taken with the full knowledge and assent of 26 Broadway, New York.

More than that, these letters show that even before the strike began in September 1913, the department of labor at Washington sent Ethelbert Stewart, of the Bureau of Labor to New York to see Mr. Rockefeller and try to avert the strike. Mr. Murphy, acting under instructions from Mr. Rockefeller, told the government agent that they could not interfere, that they knew nothing of the situation in Colorado, that the entire matter was in the hands of the mine executives at the scene. The same day after the interview, Mr. Murphy wrote a full account of it to Mr. Bowers at Denver and Mr. Bowers wrote back highly praising Mr. Murphy for his discretion in not giving the government agent any information. Mr. Bowers wrote:

"Your favor was read by both Mr. Welborn and myself with greatest satisfaction. You handled the matter raised by Mr. Stewart with exceptional skill, and it leaves us unhindered in the event there is a strike."

Wrote Full Explanation
"Mr. Bowers then wrote six typed pages explaining the entire situation—matters of which Mr. Rockefeller testified he had no knowledge."

"September 23, 1913, a week after the strike began, he (Mr. Bowers) sends a long report to Mr. Rockefeller in which he assured his chief that he and his fellow officials would never recede an inch from the stand they had taken. This is his language:

"The writer with every official of this company will stand by this declaration until our bones are bleached as white as chalk in these Rocky mountains."

"Then he adds this other note of cheer:
"Several of our mines are working from one-half to two-thirds capacity, and if we can continue undisturbed, we can keep our steel works running and supply our railroad friends with coal to keep them going in good shape until the strike is over."

"This was at a time when the people of Colorado were suffering from coal and the price had been advanced."

"Lie" Says Ammons Rockefeller Silent

DENVER, Col., April 24.—"Lie" was the word former Gov. F. M. Ammons gave out here today to the statement of Chairman Frank P. Walsh of the federal industrial relations committee that Ammons took orders from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., or his press agent, Ivy Lee.
"I never had correspondence with Mr. Rockefeller or any one representing his interests. I did not know any of these men, not even his local representative, Mr. Bowers. Once I conferred with McKenzie King, (Rockefeller's industrial welfare agent) regarding the possible settlement of the strike, but as for any letters passing between me and them or coming from them to be forwarded by me to the president or governors, it is an unqualified lie."

NEW YORK, April 24.—At the Standard Oil offices here today it was stated that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., would make no statement on the charges of Chairman Walsh, of the industrial relations committee, until he had an opportunity fully to read them. Ivy Lee, publicity agent for the Standard Oil company, would not discuss them and intimated there would be no reply from Rockefeller.

FAMOUS PICTURES GIVEN HIGH SCHOOL BY MRS. M'CORD

Five Prints of Old Masters to Be Hung in Various Rooms; Alumni Contribute

Five large pictures have been received by the La Crosse high school as a gift from Mrs. James M'CORD. The pictures are large prints of famous themes and will form valuable additions to the decorations of the school. The pictures came as a fourth present of the kind to the school from citizens.

The alumni association presented the school with an Arundel print a short time since and other citizens, who wish to be unnamed, have added others to the high school's collection. The faculty and Principal McCormick wish to thank the donors as such gifts do much to make the school more attractive.

COAL SHIP TORPEDOED

LONDON, April 24.—The captain and crew of the steamer Ruth were landed at Leith, according to word received here today, their vessel being the latest victim of German underwater boats. The Ruth was enroute to Gothenburg on Wednesday, laden with coal. She was overhauled by a submarine and her captain given ten minutes to leave with his crew.

CLAIM WARSHIP INJURED

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The German embassy today issued the following:

"According to information from a reliable source, a British battleship was severely damaged in the last Zeppelin attack on the Tyne."

POSTOFFICE YEGGS HIT CHASEBURG IN BIG BLACK CAR

About $700 in Stamps and $100 in Money Secured Without Trouble; Safe Was Unlocked

Entering the village at about one o'clock this morning in a large touring car professional yeggs broke open the rear door of the Chaseburg postoffice, and took about $700 in stamps and money from the safe. This is the third robbery in Chaseburg in twelve months.

From the time the door was forced until the money was extracted, probably did not take more than five minutes. A group of young people returning from a party on the outskirts of the village saw a big black automobile speeding away, and it is believed that this means of entering and escaping from the town was used.

Safe Left Unlocked

Postmaster Schaller had left the outer door of the safe open. The small inside door was locked, and had been pried open. Not a single article that might furnish a clue to the identity of the men was left behind.

About $100 in cash was in the safe along with $600 worth of stamps, all of which were taken. Nothing else was touched. The robbery was not discovered until the office was opened this morning.

Postoffice Inspector John P. Nicholson, La Crosse, went to Chaseburg to investigate the robbery this morning.

HONORARY SOCIETY FOR 'HIGH' GRADS IS FACULTY PLAN

Roswell Puckett Sees Possibility of National Organization with Pioneer Chapter in City

Members of the high school faculty are planning to organize an honorary society for graduates on the order of the Phi Beta Kappa society of large universities. It is suggested that membership to this society be given as an honor to those who are graduated from the high school with a grand average of 90 per cent in at least thirty subjects. This requirement will mean that only a few will be elected each year and that those elected will feel that their four years of hard work has not been for nothing. As soon as the faculty has "started the ball rolling" members intend to have a pin made which will bear the name of the society and will serve as a recommendation for the graduate in after life as all will know that to win such an insignia requires industry, perseverance and accomplishment.

No name has been yet decided on for the society. There was some talk of making it a Greek letter society but this plan will not be carried out as many people would mistake the organization for an ordinary fraternity. The name which has received most approval so far is "IPA" standing for the three words, industry, perseverance, accomplishment.

Predicts National Body

Roswell Puckett, whose idea it was to form such a society, is of the opinion that there is no reason why such a society should not extend to become a national organization similar to the Phi Beta Kappa and other societies of the great colleges membership to which is gained on merit only. He believes the establishment of such a society would do much towards increasing the scholarship in high schools as it would give the student something to look forward to and strive to attain.

At present in the La Crosse high the reading room list, which is really only an honorary list, does much towards this end. But the establishment of something substantial whose insignia the student could take with him in after life, he feels would do much more towards raising the standard of high schools.

"It is a deplorable truth at present that it is held up before high school students that to attain 75 per cent or 80 per cent perfection in their work is all that is necessary. This goes to form habits which in the business world would never make for success. The goal should be, 'as nearly perfect as possible' and I think the organization of such a society would do much towards forwarding this aim."

FIRE LOSS $50,000

ABERDEEN, S. D., April 24.—Fire originating in the postoffice at Peever, S. D., early this morning, wiped out an entire business block, causing a loss of $50,000.

MRS. MINNIE SPEARS ASKS COMPENSATION FOR LOST BOATMAN

The Industrial Commission Here Hears Four Cases Against Employers; Lineman Case Up

SLIPPERY WALK CASE CALLED

Employee of Funk Candy Company Asks Damages for Badly Scalded Arm

Mrs. Minnie Spears, proprietress of the Spears boat boat livery at the foot of Jay street, is today asking the Wisconsin industrial commission, meeting here, for compensation from the Wisconsin-Minnesota Electric Light and Power company for the death of her husband, Joseph W. Spears, on July 24, 1914.

Mrs. Spears maintains that her husband's death was due to his having been injured while working in the plant of the electric light company, April 6, of the same year.

Spears was suddenly taken with an attack of heart disease on July 24, falling into the water near his boat livery.

Commissioners C. H. Crownhart and J. W. Beck are hearing three other complaints. The sessions are being held at the court house.

One Lineman Is Killed

John Hesselgrave, Winona, Minn., who is incapacitated through injuries received while working as a lineman for the Wisconsin-Minnesota Electric Light and Power company, is asking for compensation.

At the same time that Hesselgrave was injured, James Snyder was hurt, and Henry Patzel was killed. The men were employed in "stringing" wire in Onalaska. Patzel in some manner threw a "dead" wire across the live wire, and 46,000 volts of electricity passed through their bodies. Hesselgrave is minus two fingers on one hand and one on the other, and one limb is useless.

L. F. Chase, employee of the Benton Electric company, is asking compensation for injuries sustained in a fall on a slippery pavement.

Fred Hagen wants a sum of money for a badly burned arm, which he received while working at the Jos. R. Funk Candy company.

FIFTY KNOWN DEAD IN TEXAS FLOOD

Forty-five Bodies Recovered and Score Are Still Missing Debris Is Searched for Dead

AUSTIN, Texas, April 24.—Fifty persons were known definitely early today to have perished in the floods that swept Austin early yesterday morning. Forty-five bodies had been recovered, and some of them were still unidentified. More than twenty are still missing, and several of them are believed to have perished.

The worst is over here. Some trolley service was resumed today and there were prospects that train service would be started on one or more lines tomorrow. Fear for breakage of the big Colorado river dam, with its prospect of snuffing out hundreds of lives, were relieved this forenoon with word that undoubtedly it would stand the test of the waters run riot.

Relief for the hundred or more homeless families was gathered by popular subscription. No outside aid will be needed.

Searching parties were still engaged today in pulling apart huge piles of drift in the hunt for victims. More than $1,000,000 is the revised estimate of damage to property in the city, with $150,000 of this to bridges and streets alone.

Weather

Temperatures yesterday:
High, 82.
Low, 62.

Precipitation, 0.
Forecast for La Crosse and vicinity: Unsettled but generally fair tonight and Sunday. No decided change in temperature.

For Wisconsin: Continued warm and generally fair weather tonight and Sunday.

For Minnesota: Partly cloudy and probably unsettled tonight and Sunday. Not much change in temperature.

For Iowa: Unsettled but generally fair weather tonight and Sunday. Continued warm.

From St. Paul to La Crosse: The river will continue to fall during the next 48 hours.

WALSH ACCUSES OIL KING'S SON OF WITHHOLDING INFORMATION

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whom Chairman Frank P. Walsh of the federal industrial relations committee declares was in full touch with all the developments of the mine strike in Colorado, although he denied any intimate knowledge when a witness before the committee in its New York hearing. The above picture was taken while Rockefeller was testifying at the New York hearing.

GERMANS' OFFENSIVE IN BELGIUM TAKES TOWN OF LIZERNE ON YSER CANAL

LUTHER WHITE IS FREED OF CHARGE OF ROBBERY DEPOT

Agents of Burlington and Vernon County Prosecutor Declare Him Innocent Today

Luther White, former Burlington "second trick" operator at Stoddard, accused of setting fire to three buildings there and robbing the Burlington station cash drawer has been exonerated of the charge.

White will be installed in his old position by the railroad company and given all rights, and time for his absence. He has been employed at the Stoddard station for eight years.

Attorney Frank E. Withrow, defending White, was notified of the discharge in circuit court here this morning. The message was from A. D. Garrow, special agent of the Burlington, and J. F. Baker, deputy fire marshal, who investigated the affair at Stoddard and La Crosse.

White charged with Arson
Within a few days' time, three buildings were burned to the ground at Stoddard. The first was a barn which burned at midnight.

On the night of the second burning, when two buildings were consumed, the Burlington station was also robbed of a sum of money.

The Burlington dispatcher was working at the time, and was called away from his duties by the alarm of a fire at his residence. White was then charged with arson, and also accused of robbing the depot.

At the preliminary examination, eighteen witnesses testified for White and later Judge Higbee ordered eight of twenty-five witnesses for White, to be subpoenaed by the state.

C. J. Smith, district attorney of Vernon county, also signed the petition annulling the charge against White.

RUBBER FIGHTER PAYS COURT $86.28 FOR BRIDGE SCRAP

Frank Chopiewska, former La Crosse Rubber Mills employee, found guilty of assault and battery upon the persons of Charles Vibbard and Frank Nettell, present rubber workers, today closed litigation in the case with the payment of $5 fine and costs of $81.28. Judge Brindley today reduced the fine from $10.

Organizer J. D. Chubbuck, here in the interests of the locked out rubber workers, would have nothing to say about the case. Attorney Fred H. Hartwell, representing Chopiewska, had said that the case would be appealed to circuit court.

BREAK $4,000,000 WILL

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A verdict breaking Stilson Hutchins' will dated October 26, 1910, distributing a $4,000,000 estate, was returned this afternoon. The jury found the aged millionaire was mentally incompetent.

TUESDAY OPENING DAY OF FINE ART SOCIETY EXHIBIT

Reception for Directors One Plan of Social Program Committee Headed by Mrs. Andrew Lees

LIMIT THE CHARTER MEMBERSHIPS

Time for Securing This Honor Expires with the Exhibit at Its Termination May Eighth

The art exhibit of the Art Association of La Crosse will be open to the public in the Washburn library Tuesday, instead of Monday, as was erroneously announced yesterday.

The exhibit is free to the public, day and evening, and citizens are urged to attend "early and often." The only feature which is exclusively for members of the association is the gallery tour of Dudley Crafts Watson, critic and lecturer, which will be held at a time that will be announced Monday. However, Mr. Watson will be in the city for two days and non-members will have ample opportunity to profit by his presence.

The period during which CHARTER MEMBERSHIPS in the Art Association of La Crosse will be secured terminates with the exhibit Saturday, May 8th. Membership cards can be secured at the exhibit, or names of applicants will be enrolled by the secretary, Miss Helen Dorset, or by members of the membership committee. The telephone may be used for this purpose. Any member of the association, of which now there are more than one hundred, will hand in your name for membership upon request. The membership committee is composed as follows:

L. M. Roy, Rev. W. J. Peacock, Mrs. A. Chubb, Mrs. Andrew Lees, L. P. Benezet.

Officers and directors, to whom it may be convenient to make application for membership, are as follows:

Officers—D. O. Coate, president; Miss Kate McDonald, Miss Fanny Sill, vice presidents; Miss Helen Dorset, secretary; Carl Rau, treasurer. Directors—Miss Rena Angel, L. P. Benezet, Mrs. A. Chubb, L. C. Coleman, Mrs. L. F. Easton, Dr. Edward Evans, Mrs. Lillie Finch, Mrs. R. B. Gelatt, Dr. A. Gunderson, Frank P. Hixon, Miss Gertrude Hogan, Mrs. Andrew Lees, J. E. McConnell, Odin J. Oyen, Rev. W. J. Peacock, L. M. A. Roy, Mrs. T. H. Spence, Mrs. G. Van Steenwyk, A. M. Brayton.

The social program of the art exhibit which will take place during the next two weeks is in charge of Mrs. Andrew Lees, who is empowered to select her own assistants.

One feature of this program which has been decided upon is a reception to be given for the officers and directors of the association and their wives. It is possible that others whose relationship to art seems to justify it will join the officials.

The Madame Le Brun painting of the artist by herself, exhibited by courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Theo. H. Ubbelohde, will be taken from the Ubbelohde home to the library Monday, where it will hang in a conspicuous place. Although the investigation to trace its origin through inquiry of European art experts has not been completed, all judges of art who have seen it have at once recognized it as an exceptional work of art. A Mr. Porter, who is understood to be an art authority familiar with the works of Madame Le Brun, and who recently noticed the photograph of the Ubbelohde painting published in The TRIBUNE, has written a letter in which he declares his conviction that it is indeed done by the famous artist whose signature it bears.

Applications for CHARTER MEMBERSHIPS have been coming in rapidly during the past few days, and it is expected that the number will be doubled before the close of the exhibit.

BROTHERS TO BEAR WILSON TO GRAVE

Members of the Modern Woodmen of America and of John P. Linton Lodge, No. 27, Knights of Pythias, will be pallbearers tomorrow at the funeral of John D. Wilson, manager of the Grand Union Tea company, who died Wednesday night at his home, 104 South Ninth street. Mr. Wilson was a member of both orders. From one until two o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the body will lie in state at the First Presbyterian church, where funeral services will be held at 2:30. Rev. D. C. Jones officiating. A short service with the ritual of the Knights of Pythias will be held at the grave in Oak Grove cemetery.

CHIROPRACTIC versus MEDICINE IN WISCONSIN

In explanation of the following article, the Wisconsin Medical Association is seeking by means of Bill 248-S to make laws which will legislate the Chiropractor out of business. This brief was written and given to each member of the legislature that they might kill such unjust and selfish legislation. A careful perusal of it will make clear to what extent the medical politicians go to crush a successful competitor.

A Few Jokers in 248-S

Extermination by absorption; this is the latest plan for the elimination of Chiropractors from the state of Wisconsin.

Medical Bill No. 248-S is the medium through which it is hoped to attain this end.

The wickedness of the plan lies in the fact that the bill at first glance is designed to appear fair. A closer reading shows that while it is aimed to make the public think the medical men and osteopaths are gathering the Chiropractors to their bosom, and embracing them in the family fold, the real purpose of this bill is to get them into their holy of holies and then smother them in secret.

The attorney for the Wisconsin State Board of Medical Examiners, sometime ago, remarked that when the Chiropractors came before the legislature asking for legislation and a separate board, he would introduce a bill that would give them all the legislation they wanted. And 248-S seems to be the measure he had in mind for that purpose. And it would do it.

On the face of the bill, it seems to contemplate a license for Chiropractors, after an examination in fundamentals. Such, however, is not the purpose. We must remember that the law is to be administered by the present State Board of Medical Examiners, consisting of one osteopath and seven medical men. That the Chiropractors would not be given any license to practice under this act is admitted by the brief of the attorney for the board. On page 13 of his brief he says: "IT IS TRUE THE PROPOSED BILL MAKES NO PROVISION FOR REGISTERING those who now claim to be practicing CHIROPRACTIC in this state. There is good reason for this admission. CHIROPRACTORS HAVE BEEN PRACTICING a specific form of OSTEO-PATHY AND NOTHING ELSE. The supreme court of Wisconsin has so held in a very recent case. In Arnold vs. Schmidt, 155 Wis. 55, etc."

The fact of the matter is that the supreme court HAS NOT so held, but specifically leaves that point open. What the supreme court did hold on the question, is found on page 62 of the decision where the court says: "WHETHER THE ART OF CHIROPRACTIC IS WITHIN THE STATUTE AGAINST PRACTICING OSTEO-PATHY IS, under the foregoing circumstances, A QUESTION OF FACT TO BE PROVEN BY AN AUTHENTIC DESCRIPTION OF THE FORMER AND THAT QUESTION DOES NOT APPEAR."

Now, although the court has not held that Chiropractic is osteopathy, the fact remains that the state board has always claimed and still contends in its prosecutions, and in its brief distributed to the members of the legislature, that chiropractic is osteopathy. This medical board has always claimed that no person should practice chiropractic without first obtaining an osteopathic examination. It has prosecuted many Chiropractors on this theory.

There is no cause to believe that under 248-S, as administered by them, they would change their views. They frankly admit it in their brief as copied above. This means that if 248-S becomes law, no Chiropractor can be admitted without qualifying as an Osteopath. That is, he will first have to graduate from what this medical board DETERMINES to be a reputable osteopathic school and then take an osteopathic examination before a board that for years has been fighting to exterminate him.

It will do no good for the Chiropractor to say he is a Chiropractor and wishes an examination in only the fundamentals of chiropractic. The whole matter, under 248-S, will be in the hands of the medical board, and it HAS THE POWER to compel him to be examined as an osteopath. But even were this not true, it would be as clearly unfair to compel an examination of Chiropractors in the fundamentals under the medical board. The medical board has for years unsuccessfully attempted to drive chiropractic out of Wisconsin. It has not stopped at any means to attain that end. The fight has been bitter, more bitter, perhaps, because the medical board is chagrined at its failure to eliminate this competition. Would it be fair now to compel Chiropractors to go before their old, trained and seasoned bitter enemies for an examination? Frankly, we are not willing to trust the medical board with that power and do not think you blame us.

So bitter has this board been that, up to comparatively recent times, it has attempted to brand Chiropractic as a fake. The thousands of representative citizens, friends of chiropractic, whom this medical board now seeks to deprive of chiropractic, is such a proof to the contrary, that at this session of the legislature the board has not to date, dared to cry "faker." Instead the board now professes absolute friendship.

We submit that no law so vital to the people of the state of Wisconsin should be passed in such shape that it is capable of two constructions, depending entirely upon the whims and jealousies of any human administration of it.

That the bill 248-S is an ingenious plan to exterminate Chiropractic is further shown by the fact, that the attorney for the medical board has incorporated in it a clause exempting Christian Scientists from its operation. We are finding no fault with this. Christian Scientists should be exempted from the operation of the law, but not for the reason set forth by the medical board brief. This brief intimates that a law passed without such exemption would be invalid. The contrary is true, such laws without this exemption being upheld in many cases, the leading ones being State vs. Marble, 72 Oh. St. 21; State vs. Buswell, 40 Neb. 158; First Church, 205 Pa. St. 543.

The reason the Christian Scientists should be exempted from the medical law, is because the practice is no part of medicine or osteopathy, and no medical board should control them. For the same reason Chiropractors should not come within the operation of a medical or osteopathic bill. If it is right to exempt one it is also right to exempt the other.

Until the introduction of bill 248-S this medical board has used strong arm methods to exterminate Chiropractic. They have failed because the people of Wisconsin wanted Chiropractic and felt it was their inherent right to employ the services of a Chiropractor if they needed him. Now that such methods have failed the board tries to chloroform Chiropractic by having 248-S passed.

We submit that justice and fairness to the people of the state, as well as to Chiropractic, demands that Chiropractic Bill No. 107-S, creating A CHIROPRACTIC BOARD, the same as the dental board, MAINTAINED AT NO EXPENSE TO THE TAXPAYER, and maintaining the standard of Chiropractic, should become a law in Wisconsin.

Respectfully submitted,

F. G. LUNDY, Marshfield, Wisconsin, Secretary Wisconsin Chiropractic Association.

Write your Assemblyman and Senator to support Chiropractors in the Legislature. I am the only Chiropractor in the city, as others calling themselves by that name resort to other means than the adjustment of the spine by the hands alone, and therefore are not Chiropractors as that word should be understood.

Daddy's Bedtime

The First Baby
Story — Elephant In The Country.

And the Stork Brought That Cunning Little Fellow.

"O H, daddy," cried Jack, "the circus is coming to town! I saw the bills."

"Yes, daddy," put in Evelyn, "and you'll take us, won't you?"

"To be sure," replied daddy. "I always take you to the circus, you'll remember. You'll see the acts in the rings, and you'll see all the animals in the menagerie."

"We'll see the elephants, too?" cried Jack. "I just love the elephants!"

"I don't," cried Evelyn. "They are too big to love!"

"That reminds me," said daddy, "that it's time for the story. I think I will tell you kiddies about the first baby elephant the stork ever brought to this country."

"You see, elephants had been shown in menageries for years in this great country of ours, but there hadn't been any baby elephant at all. There were baby elephants brought to jungles, but there had never been any brought to menageries. So when the stork first remembered to bring a baby elephant to a menagerie the news was told far and wide."

"It was many years ago, when Mr. Barnum was still alive. You children have heard of Mr. Barnum. All children have. I suppose there was never but one fellow more popular with children than he. Now who do you suppose that could be?"

"Santa Claus," shouted Jack.

"Sure enough," said daddy. "Well, Mr. Barnum's circus used to be shown under tents in the country through the summer, and in the winter time he would house it in big buildings which he owned at Bridgeport, Conn. And one day word went round that the stork was going to bring a baby elephant. And the stork brought that cunning little fellow, but you had better believe that he flew away again just as fast as he could, for there was such a big noise and a clatter that the funny old bird was scared nearly to death."

"The papa and mamma elephant trumpeted just as loud as they could, and the other elephants joined in the chorus, and the lions and the tigers growled like thunder when they heard the elephants, and the dogs howled, and the hyenas laughed, and the horses neighed, and all the animals made all the noise they possibly could."

"They took him around the country with his mamma, and any number of people went to see him. He was very famous. That was many years ago, and he has grown to be a big elephant now. I suppose he is still alive, because elephants grow to be very old."

"Whys" of Moves in European War

BY J. W. T. MASON.

NEW YORK, April 24.—11 a. m.—

The German success northwest of Ypres is the most important success the kaiser's armies have achieved along the western battle front since their victory at Soissons last January. The Germans have forced back the Anglo-French line about 2½ miles, which is nearly three times the distance covered by the British advance at Neuve Chapelle.

East of Ypres the British line forms an angle which pushes several miles into the German front. The establishment of a German position on the west bank of the Ypres canal has bent back the northern side of the British angle. Not only has this side been lengthened, but also the angle itself has been made more acute. By lengthening the side of the angle, the Germans are now able to threaten flank and rear attacks against the British positions at Ypres, by sharpening the point of the angle, the Germans have decreased the extent of the front along which the British can conduct an offensive of their own.

The whole effect of the German victory is thus entirely local. It will compel the British to use more troops to defend the outskirts of Ypres but will have no influence on the battle line as a whole. Like all the other engagements in France and Belgium since the present battle line was formed, the German advance across the Ypres canal is a minor skirmish, as far as its general effect is concerned. Indeed the fact that the Germans were able to push into the British line after the arrival of 750,000 troops at the front, emphasizes the existence of a counter-offensive power among the Germans which must be a very important factor in maintaining the present deadlock.

It is not at all probable that the German advance signifies the commencement of a new effort to reach Calais. It might as well have been assumed that the British offensive at Neuve Chapelle marked the beginning of an attempt to reach the Rhine.

Sometimes Called Eczema—Removed by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Salt rheum is one of the worst and unfortunately one of the most common of all diseases. How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales, and then does this all over again! Sometimes it covers the whole body with inflamed, burning patches and causes intense suffering, which is commonly worse at night.

Local applications may do some good, but they cannot permanently relieve. The disease will continue to annoy, pain and perhaps agonize, until the blood has been purified and the general health improved.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla, the good old reliable family remedy. It has given perfect satisfaction in thousands of cases. Insist on having Hood's Sarsaparilla, for no substitute acts like it. Get it today.

"If a man and woman have been married thirty years and managed to live on such terms as to prevent gossip regarding their relations, it does seem a pity to me that something can arise at that time in their lives to make them separate."

"Ma," Watson made the statement as solemnly as if she were repeating her creed in church. The couple of whom she spoke were her next door neighbors and intimate friends. Suddenly they had separated; he to go to town to live, she to her daughter's house. For the pair had a married daughter—their only child—and an infant grandson.

Nobody seemed to have an idea of what the trouble was; every one in the community wanted to know, for Mr. and Mrs. Sefton had been popular in the little social circle for years. Now that conversation regarding them was on every tongue, it did seem as if perhaps the couple in question had not seemed to be on such friendly terms with each other since their daughter married.

"Maybe they just kept peace—or semblance of it—until Leila was married," suggested one neighbor. "Mebbe so," nodded "Pa" Watson. "Mebbe so. But 'tis certainly awful. Why ma and I would as soon think of a gettin' a divorce as we would think of 'tryin' to enlist in the army for the war."

The beautiful home of the Seftons was for rent, and summer vacationists were looking at it every day with a prospect of renting it.

"Oh it's a shame," Ma Watson said a dozen times a day when she saw the overgrown garden, the empty chairs on the veranda. "And we been neighbors for seventeen years. I have to pinch myself every now and then to see that I'm not dreamin'."

Leila was looked to for an explanation, but the girl could—or would—give none. "It was as much of a surprise to me as to any one," she would say to all friends who seemed anxious to get at the truth. And she looked as if she meant what she told them.

Mrs. Sefton spent every moment of her grandson's waking hours with him. She took him out into the parks; she sewed for him and romped and played with him as if she had been twenty years younger. And the smile she always wore was the smile of her forefathers which makes all troubles from the world. Only the tightly drawn lips smiled; in her heart she was sad and lonely in spite of the beautiful baby of her only daughter.

Mother and daughter had never discussed the separation since the first day that Mrs. Sefton came there; and then the explanation had been brief. Leila knew nothing. But she was a loyal, loving daughter, and she knew that whatever had been the trouble her mother could have done no great wrong.

"You are utterly spoiling Peter and me," Leila said to her mother one day when she had returned from an afternoon spent under the trees with Peter.

"I—I must spoil some one, dear," the mother answered. "A woman can't spoil and pet a human being for thirty years and then find herself empty-handed of anything to indulge. You're young, and may not understand how long thirty years is, daughter."

"Perhaps not, mother," said Leila. "And don't think I'm seriously objecting to the spoiling. I love it. It's wonderful to have you with us—even Ned says so, and that's a concession from a son-in-law, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," Mrs. Sefton said, absently. Her mind was far away, back to the days when her own little daughter was in arms as was Peter now. She had had no mother to help her take care of her infant; she had had no modern conveniences; she had had to work hard from morning till night and take care of little Leila when she herself was scarcely more than a girl. For Mr. and Mrs. Sefton had begun their married life with very little of the world's goods. Even now they had not acquired much, but it was all they had wanted; more than enough to make them comfortable.

Leila had sensed her mother's loneliness for some weeks, though this was the first time she had ever given utterance to a word that would lead anyone to think that she missed her partner.

That night Leila and Ned talked until far into the night. They were planning a ruse by which they could get their baby's grandparents to gether.

"For, once together again, I'm sure they could not bear to separate," Leila had said. "Mother may have a Little too much Bruce stubbornness in her, but father—like all of his family—is downright obstinate. I honestly think they quarreled over some trivial matter, and having nothing else to think about and very little to do the quarrel became serious and neither one would give in."

"It can't be anything else, dear. It will come out all right—I feel it," comforted Ned.

Leila was in touch with her father, and on the following day she spoke with him on the telephone. "Hello, daddy," she said. "Mother's out tonight and we—Ned and I—thought perhaps you'd like to come and see us and Peter."

She waited for a few minutes for the answer, but when it came it was satisfactory, for she promptly telephoned to her husband that she would join him for dinner, and that they would spend the evening at the theater or on a roof garden.

"Peter will never go to sleep for mother, Ned, and he'll be wide awake in her arms when daddy arrives. I told Jane to admit my father without saying that we were out. Isn't it working splendidly?"

John Sefton rang the doorbell of his daughter's apartment with a feeble touch than had ever been his before. He did not admit it to himself, but he was declining in strength very fast.

He left his hat and old walking stick with his gloves in the hall and he stopped to listen to the baby's cooing and laughing before he pushed aside the portieres and stepped into the cosy living room.

"Mary!" he gasped, looking at his wife, who was as surprised as himself.

"John Henry Sefton! You!" she said, holding the baby close.

"Mary—Mary," began the elderly man, brokenly. "I—I didn't know how much I wanted to see you till I laid my eyes on you this minute. This is some of Leila's doings," he added.

"It must be," Mrs. Sefton said, blinking away the tears of joy that would spring to her eyes at sight of her husband.

There was silence for a full minute while John Sefton stepped closer and closer to his grandson and his wife. They both looked into the round laughing face of the infant and then into each other's eyes. "It was my fault," they said in unison.

"It was the most trifling thing that a couple ever separated over, Mary, and I know it," John said after a while, in which he had been permitted to hold the baby.

"Yes—poor little, innocent Peter," said Mrs. Sefton, while tears streamed down her face. "The naming of your plain Peter was the cause of your silly old grandparents' quarrel. I refused to interfere with Leila and Ned if they chose to call you Peter, and your grandfather refused to own a child named Peter when it had perfectly good relatives with respectable names like John—"

She looked at her husband with the old time smile.

"And you remember when we said, when we celebrate our silver wedding, that our love had been full blown for so long that we could remember nothing else but that perfectly developed understanding?" asked John softly.

"Oh, don't—I do know it. Kiss Peter and—"

Her words were never made articulate, for Peter began to demand attention and the fond and doting grandparents tried all their wiles to quiet him. At last he screamed himself to sleep, and the reunited pair found as much to say to each other as if their love were just in the budding instead of full blown.

GALESVILLE MAN WANTS $10,000.00 FOR WIFE'S DEATH

GALESVILLE, Wis., April 24.—(Special.)—Thomas Hunter, Galesville, Wis., has filed suit against the Chicago & Northwestern railway for $10,000 damages for the death of his wife, which he alleges resulted from injuries sustained when she was riding on a train from Galesville to La Crosse, Dec. 14, 1914.

Child Also Dies
It is alleged that Mrs. Hunter was thrown to the floor of a car when the train lurched, and that she died, as a result of the fall, five days later when she gave birth to a child. The child died also.

The suit is filed at St. Paul.

HOW TO CLEAR AWAY PIMPLES

Bathe your face for several minutes with resinol soap and hot water, then apply a little resinol ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with resinol soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol ointment and resinol soap etop itching instantly and speedily heal skin humors, sores, burns, wounds and chafing. Sold by all druggists.

SOAP FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN
The regular use of resinol soap is usually enough to prevent those distressing rashes and chafings to which most babies are subject. This is so, first, because resinol soap is absolutely pure and free from harsh alkali, and second, because it contains the resinol medication, on which so many physicians rely for skin troubles.

'WAR' WHAT FOR?

Mayor Thompson, Chicago's new chief executive, has 'gone on the water wagon' during his term of office.

There is not in this declaration anything of the "moral flap-doodle" which some "hard-headed" individuals object to in dealing with the liquor question. Mr. Thompson puts it upon the unsentimental modern economic grounds. He says he has abandoned drink to increase his efficiency for the great task he has undertaken.

With Russia, France and Mayor Thompson on the water wagon for the sake of efficiency, war and off-the-holding assume an element of respectability. This may be the answer to "War—What For?"

"T. R." PROPOSES AND GOD DISPOSES"

The gist of it is that Col. Roosevelt will return to the republican party bag and baggage, in 1916, provided the national convention nominates a republican of a type not identified with the unpardonable sin of the national convention of 1912.

The colonel is immensely anxious to defeat Wilson, whom he elected in 1912, and upon whose administration the vials of his wrath have been chiefly poured out of late. But, if we are to credit Mr. Knox, he will "do his utmost to revive the progressive party" and thus once more inflict a democratic administration on the country should the republican national convention next year nominate a republican of a type offensive to his exasperated sensibilities.—The Sentinel.

We accept with alacrity that portion of the colonel's pronouncement which demands a progressive republican or THE progressive democrat. However, the G. O. P. may find application for a revision of an old epigram: "T. R." proposes and God disposes." It may again be demonstrated that "we, the people of the United States" "don't want to swap horses while they are crossing the river."

SHALL WE MAKE U. OF W. A BEGGAR IN POLITICS

To deprive the university of the dependable income which the mill tax provides, as is contemplated by the Ellingson bill which went to engrossment in the senate yesterday, is not a policy which recommends itself as likely to result in good to the institution. Its only recommendation is a claim of economy which is not particularly impressive. The university establishment has a fairly constant expense which cannot be lowered any considerable amount without undermining its efficiency.

The chief fault with the Ellingson bill is that it makes the university dependent upon the legislature for support by direct appropriation. Legislatures come and go. Some are preponderantly favorable to educational advancement. Others are not. To allow them to lavish upon or dole sustenance to the university according to their varying attitudes is to force the institution into step with all the political advances and retrogressions of the state. Under such uncertain conditions any ripening plans for improvement continuing from year to year would be virtually impossible.

Here is another thought. The proponents of the Ellingson bill are, generally speaking, those whose greatest complaint against the university is that it is "in politics." Is there any surer way to put the university into politics than to make it sit up and beg for its appropriation each year?

PHASES OF CHICAGO ELECTION MEETING

The Chicago election carries the basis for an inference regarding the desire of women to vote. More than half the women were registered, which in view of the short time they have enjoyed the franchise, is good. At least it shows that a majority of Chicago women do want to vote.

Of the number registered eighty-six per cent actually voted. As but eighty-eight per cent of the registered males voted, it will have to be admitted that the women made a good beginning.

For the first time independent voting struck Chicago in this election. It was evident to an extent which warrants the assumption that, no matter how they view the mayoralty, the voters there regard aldermanic contests in the non-partisan light.

The Municipal Voters' league, the strength of which depends upon independent voting, elected thirty candidates it endorsed, and lost but eight, while only four candidates to whom it specifically objected were elected. The result is that Chicago probably has the best council in its history.

"Personal liberty," as represented by the United Societies of hyphenated Americans, seems to have helped swamp Schweitzer under the flood of Thompson's great majority. Its fate is more definitely shown by the fact that it elected but nineteen of the forty-nine candidates it endorsed.

There was intelligent voting in Chicago, and the women seem to have helped the average.

A Test of Nerve. To crouch in a trench or covered bombproof from dawn until dusk, to hear the incessant whistle of thousands of projectiles, to mark the little clouds of dust kicked up by bullets as they strike the ground near a trench or shelter, to start at the bursting of shrapnel shells, each containing 200 or 300 bullets which are scattered over many yards, is a test of human nerve which Napoleon's Old Guard was never called upon to withstand.—Walde-mar Kaempfert in American Review of Reviews.

"All right," said Pat, "leave it there."

Next day he was passing the place and saw his picture in a showcase, and under it were the words in big letters:

An Elephant Bridge.
In ancient times in India a famous general used elephants to bridge a stream. He possessed a battalion of over 500 elephants, and approaching a river where the stream was too rapid for his troops to cross, he ordered the elephants in and had them placed side by side, facing up and down the stream. Then planks were brought and laid from the back of one elephant to that of another, and over them the troops passed in safety, the only trouble experienced being the showers of water which the elephants kept up by sucking up the refreshing liquid in their trunks and tossing it over their bodies.

THE RED MIRAGE

By L. A. R. WYLIE

Author of 'The Native Born, The Daughter of Brahma, Etc.

"Today was a red-faced devil, you know, like the one you saw that night. I wanted to cheat it—I was very cunning—I drugged myself so that I should not wake until it had gone. But it sat beside me and waited and waited until I woke. And then it laughed and lolled its tongue out at me, and I knew that you can not cheat the devil with opium. I went out on to the plateau. Farquhar was there. Poor Farquhar! My heart was sick for him. They had torn my bullet out of his shoulder, and he held himself like a man. I wanted to let him go, but I knew it was no good to try, so I sent him and a dozen others over the plateau at the double. You understand—it was a mile or more, and he looked as though there wasn't a drop of blood in him. He fainted—over the body of a comrade whom he had tried to help. I marvelled that he had gone so far. The sergeant ordered him up, but he did not move. He was unconscious. But that did not count; he had disobeyed orders. We are very severe with that sort of thing in the Legion. I had him strung up in the crapandine. Do you know what that is, Mademoiselle? We strap a man's wrists and ankles together behind his back and leave him like that for a day or two, out-of-doors, with a quarter of an hour's interval here and there, to break the monotony. It used to be a very favorite punishment in the Legion. The good General Negrier abolished it, but now and again we revive it. I revived it. Richard Farquhar is out there now, on the plateau, and perhaps he will not live to see the morning. And he saved me—he saved—" The terrible dry whisper ended suddenly. Arnaud put his hands to his head with a movement of pathetic helplessness.

"Miss Smith—I—I am afraid I have been wandering—talking nonsense. I do not know what is the matter with me—I must have had a touch of the sun. You—you don't think I am altogether mad, do you?"
"No, no," Captain Arnaud—only worn out—exhausted. Come, I want you to lie down on this sofa here, and I shall put the lights out. You must promise me to try and sleep. On your word of honor."

"My word of honor? Oh, I don't think that's worth much nowadays. But I'll promise. I think you're right. If I could only sleep. I haven't slept for eight nights; but you—you make me feel as though it might be possible—you are very good to me. I'm not worth the bother. But I'll do anything you ask."

"I only ask of you to sleep and forget," she answered.
He nodded, yielding to her like a sick child, his eyes following her movements with a humble gratitude. She arranged the pillows beneath his head, and he took her hand and kissed it, diffidently, apologetically.
"I hope you don't mind. I expect if you knew what I was—that I had done, you would shrink from me."

"No, Captain Arnaud, if you were the devil himself, I should not shrink from you."
"I don't believe you would. You'd comfort him—you'd tell him there was hope for him yet—that he was not altogether bad. My wife—" He faltered, and her grasp on his powerless hand grew firmer.

"Your wife is very young, Captain Arnaud. One day soon she will understand as I do."
"If that were true—possible—then I could sleep—" His eyes closed. A weak tremulous sigh quivered at the corners of his mouth. He fell and left him.

Sylvia Arnaud's room lay at the farther end of the corridor. Gabrielle knocked and immediately entered. Her manner, from that of quiet good humor, had become alert and hard. Her eyes were very bright, her mouth set in lines that for once betrayed no trace of humor. Sylvia Arnaud looked up from the jasmine which she had been holding to her face. She was already in her leonard and her long fair hair hung about her shoulders, adding to a loveliness that before this white-faced, resolute woman faded to a pale insincerity. Gabrielle Smith closed the door behind her, and in answer to the unspoken question came straight across the softly carpeted room.

"Your husband is very ill, Madame Arnaud," she said. "He is on the brink of a nervous breakdown—perhaps worse—and only you can save him. I came to warn you."

"You are very kind, Miss Smith."
"This is not the time to exchange commonplaces. When he awakes you must go to him. You must tell him that you will accompany him to Tonkin. It is the only way. You must tell him that it is not too late for him to retrieve what he has lost—that you will give him his chance. Take some of the blame on your own shoulders. You can justly do so. Your loss and the conviction that he has sunk too low ever to reach you has made him what he is. The realization that you are human like himself may give him the strength to become what he might be. But you must act at once—before it is too late."

Sylvia Arnaud drew back, white and trembling, the first indulgent good humor turned to an incredulous anger.
"I do not know by what right you interfere," she said. "There must be madness in the air. But whatever purpose possesses you—you are at least not tactful."
"I am not tactful because that is wasted on you, Madame Arnaud," was the curt answer. "You are not the woman to yield to supplication or persuasion. I have seen that a hundred times. You yield to brutality—nothing less."

"Your brutality?" Miss Smith, are you forgetting—
"That I am your paid companion? No. But it is in your or my power to make our status into that of absolute equality—this moment if you wish. Do you wish it?"
Sylvia stared blankly at the stern white face of the woman confronting her. Her anger had burned out like straw, and she was now only frightened and a little resentful.

"I—I don't want to lose you, Miss Smith," she stammered. "I know that you do not care for me; but in your strange way you have been friendly—and I—I am very alone. I have confidence in you. I am prepared to overlook the evening's outbreak."

"That's what you can not and shall not do," was the grim answer. "You have driven your husband to the verge of madness, Madame Arnaud, and through madness to crime—to the murder of a man who surely was once dear to you."
"Whom do you mean?"
"Richard Farquhar."

Sylvia sank down on the chair opposite her looking-glass. Her knees seemed to have given way under her and her lips were quivering.

"It was an accident," she said almost inaudibly.

"It was not, and you know it was not. It is not an accident that he is being done to death out there on the plateau at your husband's orders. It is not accidental that Captain Arnaud believes that Mr. Farquhar has come between you both. You made him think so—at least, you allowed him to think so—and you know it is not true."

"I forbid you—you are beside yourself—"

JITNEY BUS STARTS WORK HERE TODAY

The jitney bus line started by Louis Giroux and J. J. Bristow today made its bow before the La Crosse public. Running from Logan street to Fourth and Pearl streets, the one car put on today attracted considerable attention from people on the downtown streets who until today have looked upon the jitney bus as more of an ideal than a stern reality. The automobile carries passengers to and from North La Crosse for five cents.

"Isn't that so, Mr. So and So?"
"Isn't that so, Mrs. Blank?"
Thus did Rev. Peter Nelson impress his statements upon his hearers last night in the third of a series of evangelistic meetings at Bethel
Lutheran church.

As the minister grew warm to his topic, he resorted to his pulpit tactics so well known here.

His sermon was interspersed regularly with thrusts into the audience, quizzing both friend and stranger.

The church was crowded for the service last night. Rev. Wang of Minneapolis spoke also. He also spoke at the afternoon meeting. Services were held this afternoon and will be this evening as well as tomorrow forenoon, afternoon and evening. Rev. Wang will conduct services at Onalaska in the forenoon, but will be present at the other meetings.

Political Speculation

"When Mr. Rockefeller refused the request of Secretary Wilson that he authorize representatives of the operators to meet representatives of the miners he added that he would support the action of the mine executive to the end. This brought a reply of appreciation from Chairman Bowers.

"In this same letter," said Mr.
Mr. Walsh, "Mr. Bowers indulges in some political speculation that is very interesting. He wrote:

"This strike has brought to the front the issue which will secure the attention, and I believe the co-operation of the business men of the country regardless of political affiliations—to force candidates for office to come out in the open and declare their attitude toward the rights of employers and employees to run an open shop.

"We all know the politicians have been giving organized labor hops for the purpose of securing their votes regardless of the fact that the great mass of laboring men have no connection with labor unions, including the millions of farmers. It has become a matter of such importance that it will doubtless be one of the great issues in politics in 1916. I believe there is no man in either the republican or democratic parties who would dare to come out in opposition of open shop. As long as the politicians can ride two horses going in opposite directions without attracting the attention of the public they are reasonably safe but that time is coming to an end and I believe that in the long run good will come. They have so far over-reached the bounds of reason and common decency as to attract attention everywhere, and this is what is needed to awaken the men who have the good of the country at heart, to oppose and finally defeat unions of every sort from becoming dictators to both employers and employees with the hope that they will eventually control affairs of state and nation."

Reports Union Pinched

MRS. BLANCHARD SUMMONED TODAY

Wife of Milwaukee Road
Fireman Succumbs and
Will Be Buried at Sparta

Mrs. Martha B. Blanchard, 1133
Caledonia street, wife of Frederick Blanchard, a fireman on the Milwaukee road, died at 1:40 this morning, at her home, after an illness of more than a year with a complication of diseases. She had been confined to her home for several months.

She was born February 28, 1880,
in Portage, and was married June 24, 1900, to Frederick Blanchard at Sparta. They later moved to La Crosse.

She is survived by her husband;
two sisters, Mrs. W. S. Steele of Sparta and Mrs. Lillian Stevens of Mauston; and six children, Miss Grace Huntley of Winnipeg and Helen, Marjory, Stella, Doris and Fred Blanchard.

The body will be taken to Sparta at noon tomorrow. Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 o'clock at the home of the sister, Mrs. W. S.
Steele, interment to be in Woodlawn cemetery.

er before and that it was only a matter of time until they would be cut off from all funds.

"Then came the Ludlow horror, and Mr. Bowers, conscious of the effect it would have with the court, is quick to telegraph Mr. Rockefeller to get the first say-so in the press.

Here is the telegram:

"Following withdrawal of troops
by orders of governor an unprovoked attack upon small force of militia by two hundred strikers. Forced fighting, resulted in possible loss of ten or fifteen strikers. Only one militia man killed. Ludlow tent colony totally destroyed by burning two hundred tents, generally followed by explosions, showing ammunition and dynamite stored by them. Suggest your giving this to friendly papers."

Lee Drafted Letters for Governor

"Perhaps the most amazing revelation in this whole extraordinary correspondence is that contained in letters exchanged by Mr. Rockefeller and Ivy Lee at the time Governor Ammons was acting in the strike adjustment.

"Under the date of June 10, 1914,
Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., writes this to Lee:

"Several points in my memorandum, however, could well, even more appropriately, be used as the major's memorandum reaches you,
which I hope will be very shortly."

"We do not know yet what this letter was that Mr. Lee was proposing to prepare for Gov. Ammons, but we hope to find out.

"There were other letters, too, which Mr. Lee was to prepare for Gov. Ammons to sign, one to be directed to the governors of other states. We can guess this from another extract from a letter from
Mr. Rockefeller to Mr. Lee under date of June 29:

"I should be interested to see the letter from Gov. Ammons to the governors and also the Tarrytown article which you are preparing."

"Mr. Lee evidently was a busy man. He was painstaking too, if we may judge from his reply to Mr.
Rockefeller, July 2:

"With reference to the letter for Gov. Ammons, I am not entirely satisfied with the draft I prepared and I am making certain amendments to it. I sent a draft out for discussion, but will get it into shape in a day or two and then send you a copy."

KLEIST SAYS WIFE TAUGHT DRINKING

NEW YORK, April 24.—Trips to five Broadway hotels on his wedding day and bright hued silk socks belonging originally to his father-in-law, were exploited indiscriminately when Max F. Kleist, who is suing
E. N. Breitung and wife for $250,000 for alienating the affections of their daughter from him, was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination.
Kleist admitted taking an assumed name, "Frank Chase," on the day of his marriage to Juliet Breitung, but he blamed it on his bride.

"Don't be a tea drinker," he said
Juliet exhorted him, and then taught him to smoke cigarettes.

"I was a good boy until then," he admitted to question.

riage a failure.

TERRE HAUTE IN RUSH TO RELIEVE ROBERTS OF DUTY

TERRE HAUTE, April 24.—The impeachment trial of Mayor Donn M. Roberts was hurried toward a close today. It was believed that before night Roberts would be freed from executive duties here and therefore allowed to devote his entire time to the government job of civil engineer, assigned him by Warden Morgan of Leavenworth prison.

ARMED TRUCE IN T. R. BARNES CASE

Label Trial Is Adjourned Until Monday When It Will Start on the Second Lap

BOTH SIDES STILL CONFIDENT

Reported Today Barnes Has Surprise in Store for the Colonel's Defense

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 24.—An armed truce was observed today in the political camps of William Barnes and Col. Roosevelt.

Adjournment of the label trial until Monday was a welcome respite to both sides. Both needed recuperation—except possibly the colonel, who showed no sign of fatigue after four strenuous days on the witness stand.

Roosevelt remained here over the week-end with his host, Horace S. Wilkinson. Barnes was in Albany, to look after his business and possibly to observe the windup of the state legislature.

The trial will extend at least another week, probably ten days, and possibly two weeks more, was the range of predictions today.

While his forces were jubilant to-

Naval Collision Mats.

The collision mat, which is carried by all warships, is a very valuable part of the vessel's equipment and often prevents a ship sinking when she has been badly hit by the enemy.

The mat varies in size from ten to fifteen feet square and is made of sailcloth into which has been interwoven a number of "thrums" or pieces of tarry hemp closely knit together.

In case of the vessel being damaged by shells or collision the mat is lowered and held over the hole by the ropes which are attached to it.

The pressure of the water forces the mat closely over the gap and thus temporarily stops the leak till it can be closed from within.

Pride. Pride is not a bad thing when it only urges us to hide our own hurts, not to hurt others.

Crossed Knives and Forks. The old custom of crossing the knife and fork after dining had its origin, if we may trust Mr. F. W. Burgess' explanation in his book, "Chats on Household Customs," in a spirit of devotion.

He quotes Browning:
Knife and fork he never lays
Crosswise, to my recollection.
As I do in Jean's praise.

"In Russia," says Mr. Burgess, "this custom of the peasantry was deep rooted, and there they were careful to take up the knife and fork and lay them down on the plate crossed before commencing their merriment meal. Strange to say that, although knives and forks have been crossed in reverence, to cross knives has been deemed unlucky."

His Comfort. "Some of our constituents complain that you are too willing to take orders from almost anybody."

"Take orders, do I?" mused Senator Sorghum. "Anyhow, I'm not accused of being a boss."—Washington Star.

Notice to Owners of Property Affected Thereby:

Notice is hereby given, that pursuant to resolution adopted by the common council of the city of La Crosse, on the 11th day of September, A. D. 1914, a jury was duly empaneled to determine upon the necessity of opening and extending certain streets and alleys and the taking of land therefor.

The verdict of the jury was returned in manner as provided by law, and upon such verdict, commissioners were appointed by the judge of the county court of La Crosse county, Wisconsin, to assess the land affected by the opening of such streets, and ascertain and determine the description of all premises which will be injured or benefited thereby, and to determine and appraise the value of the several parcels of real estate proposed to be taken and the damages and benefits arising to each parcel of land in their opinion benefited or damaged by such proposed improvement.

The report of such commissioners was filed in the office of the clerk of the city of La Crosse on the first day of April, 1915, and is open to inspection of property owners.

The report of the commissioners has also been referred to the judicial committee of the common council of the city of La Crosse for consideration, and will at a later meeting of the common council be confirmed, rejected or modified and confirmed as modified.

You and each of you are hereby notified of the filing of such report of the commissioners. You may examine said report, and if you have any objection to the assessment of damages and benefits and determination of the commissioners thereupon, as to any piece of property, you may present your objection to the judicial committee of the common council of the city of La Crosse.

For many days the members of the Woman's guild of Christ church have been preparing a parcel post sale to be held next Saturday, May 1, at the home of Mrs. Harry J. Hirschheimer, 131 South Fifteenth street. The ladies have been asking their friends to mail a small package by "parcel post" to the above address on May Day they will sell these parcels, potted plants, flowers and fancy articles. Tea will be served and a musical program given. The public is invited.

SOCIAL BRIEFS

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. George Hixon, Toledo, Ohio, April 13, a daughter.

The Woman's Guild of Christ Episcopal church will be entertained next Thursday afternoon at the guild rooms.

The W. C. T. U. will be entertained next Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. A. Guthrie, 1221 Vine St. Mrs. Levi Withoe, who has been spending a number of weeks in the city, will leave Monday noon for her home at Watertown, Fla.

Mrs. P. S. Davidson, Portland, Ore., who has been the guest of Mrs. Elsie Gile Scott, will leave Monday evening for Cincinnati, Ohio, where she will spend several months with friends.

Many a young man who starts out in life under the impression that he is a born leader, gets married and retires to the rear of the procession.

YOUR OWN LIFE.

One thing there is which is yours incontestably. You have your life, and, however insignificant its place, however meager its conditions, however circumscribed its power, it is of quite inconceivable worth to you and to mankind. The whole wide world does not equal it in value, and if all external aims were realized and all your cravings satisfied you are an ignominious failure if you have not nourished and developed that which is most palpably your own.—E. G. Spencer.

MRS. OSCHGER IS AGAIN TO CATER AT COUNTRY CLUB

Links Now Open for Play; Meals Served After May 15; Personnel Is Announced

Mrs. John C. Oeschger will again have charge of the catering department of the La Crosse Country club, Secretary William D. Iden announced today. Mrs. Oeschger, who is now in Detroit, is expected here soon to take charge of the house. She has been in charge for two years. Meals will be served at the house by May 15, it is thought.

John Kubiak will continue this year as caretaker of the premises, including the links and the tennis courts. Considerable work has already been done on the grounds.

The opening of the grounds for play this year has been the earliest in many years. Golfers have been on the links for more than two weeks, reporting the course to be in excellent shape. Many enthusiasts use the grounds daily.

Street cars will be run to the grounds as soon as traffic warrants, the management of the street car company has announced.

WOODCUTTER FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

Thomas Buchanan, woodchopper, of New Albion, Ia., was found dead in bed at ten o'clock this morning in his room over the Holzhammer saloon at 1335 South Third street.

LARS MOE DIES

Lars Moe, for thirty-five years a carpenter at the Segelke-Kohlhaus factory, died at 11:30 this morning at the home of his brother, L. C. Moe, 1523 Winnebago street, after a several months' illness with cancer. He was 64 years old.

A native of Norway, Mr. Moe came to this country more than thirty-five years ago. Soon after he came to La Crosse, where he has resided ever since.

Surviving him are two brothers, L. C. of La Crosse, and Christ, of Norway, and three sisters living in Norway.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 at the home of the brother, 1523 Winnebago street, Rev. H. J. Hellevik of St. Paul's Norwegian Lutheran church officiating. Interment will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

We thank those who assisted us during the sickness and death of our wife and mother, also Father Risterer, and all who sent floral offerings.

HIKE TWENTY-FIVE MILES IN NIGHT

CALEDONIA, Minn., April 24.—(Special.)—Three young "Edward Payson Weston" arrived here at the break of dawn from La Crosse, footsore and weary, and resolved to "never again."

The boys were Lloyd Whitbeck, son of Dr. Whitbeck of this place; James McKivergin and Leo Ryan, La Crosse. Whitbeck and Ryan attend the state normal at La Crosse, and McKivergin the high school.

The distance of twenty-five miles was covered in about eight hours. The boys started from La Crosse at about dark last night.

GERMANS CELEBRATE TODAY IN HONOR OF VON TIRPITZ

Admiral P. T. von Tirpitz

Today is von Tirpitz day in Germany. The entire nation joined in observing the fiftieth anniversary of the grand admiral's entrance into the navy, and the eighteenth of his inauguration as minister of the navy. Grand Admiral von Tirpitz spent the day at his desk, where he received messages of congratulation from the kaiser and many officials, as well as from thousands of private citizens in the empire.

Kaiser Wilhelm this afternoon announced the decoration of the German admiral with an iron cross of the first class. In a telegram to him he described von Tirpitz as "the savior of the empire." It was made known also that von Tirpitz would receive a hereditary title.

BUCHDA IS NAMED CLERK OF WOODMEN

William Buchda has been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Wilson, clerk of La Crosse Camp No. 360, Modern Woodmen of America. A permanent clerk will be appointed at the next meeting of the lodge, to be held on the second Friday in May.

Members of the Woodmen lodge will meet in a body at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to attend the funeral of Mr. Wilson.

It should be a penal offense to grind out "Coming Through the Rye" on a hand organ in a prohibition precinct.

SERVANT SOUGHT FOR BOTTLE MURDER

NEW YORK, April 24.—The police net was spread all over the city today in an endeavor to apprehend Joseph Hanel, German servant, who is believed to have murdered Mrs. Julia Helmer, an invalid, at her home in Brooklyn on Friday.

Hanel had been befriended by Mrs. Helmer. She was beaten to death with a beer bottle. Her assailant stole the diamonds from her fingers and ears.

ELGIN BUTTER MARKET

ELGIN, Ill., April 24.—Butter sales at 26½, 27½ and 28c against 28 and 2½c last week.

FOREIGN MARKETS

New York Stocks. NEW YORK, April 24.—Prices were irregular at the opening of the stock market today. Union Pacific sold off ¼ at 131½. Bethlehem Steel sold off ¼ at 144. U. S. Steel was off ¼ at 56¾.

11 a. m.—Trading was active in the first hour, though transactions were in much smaller units than the street has been accustomed to during the recent advance.

The market grew stronger in the second hour of the short session. Missouri Pacific and United States Steel became active and there was heavy buying shortly before the end. The market closed strong.

New York Money. NEW YORK, April 24.—Bar Silver, 50½c. Demand sterling, 4.78 15-16.

Kansas City Livestock. KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 24.—Cattle. Receipts 600; market steady; steers, $6.50 to $8.75; cows and heifers, $4.00 to $8.50; stockers and feeders, $6.50 to $8.50; calves, $6.00 to $10.00.

Hogs.—Receipts 1,000; market strong; bulk, $7.40 to $7.50; heavy, $7.40 to $7.50; medium, $7.45 to $7.50; light, $7.40 to $7.50.

Sheep.—Receipts 500.

77c; Spring, 77c; barley, 75 to 82c; rye, No. 2, none; timothy, $4.50 to $6.25; clover, $8.00 to $12.75.

Chicago Produce. CHICAGO, April 24.—Butter—Extras, 27½c; firsts, 25 to 26c; dairy extras, 25½c; firsts, 23 to 24c. Eggs—Ordinary, 18 to 18½c; prime firsts, 19 to 19½c. Cheese—Twins, 14½ to 14¾; Young Americans, 14½ to 14¾.

Potatoes.—Receipts 27 cars; Michigan white, 35 to 42c; red, 35 to 40c; Wisconsin, white, 35 to 42c; red, 35 to 40c; new potatoes, Florida Hastings, No. 1, $5.25 per bbl.; No. 2, $4.25 per bbl.

Live Poultry.—Fowls, 15c; ducks, 12 to 15c; geese, 8 to 10c; spring chickens, 18c; turkeys, 12c.

Chicago Grain Review. CHICAGO, April 24.—Higher cables and a great deal of commission house buying today made wheat prices advance sharply. The opening was up ¼, unchanged and up ½ compared with yesterday's close. There was a short-lived rush to buy on the bulge which caused fractional recessions from the opening, and then with offerings scant, prices again advanced until at one time they touched 164½, 140 and 129½ which were advances over the opening of 1½, 1½ and 2½. The close was strong.

The wheat strength, bullish Argentine news and strong European cables all conspired to advance corn prices today. The opening was ¼ to ½ higher than yesterday's close. At today's close prices were down ¼ and up ¼.

Oats prices were up ¼ at the opening, due to strength in other cereals and considerable buying. At the close prices were down ¼ and up ¼ to ½ compared with the opening. Provisions were inactive and featureless. Prices were easier.

LA CROSSE LOSES ORATORICAL HONOR

Sparta and Viroqua Win from Local High School in Contests at the Sister Cities

La Crosse high school in both the league oratorical and declamatory contests this year emerged without a place. This is the first time in years that the high school has not represented the league at the district contest in either of the two events.

The declamatory contest, which was limited to girls only, was held at Viroqua last night. Lorna Axtell of Sparta took first place with the selection, "The execution of Sidney Cartman," by Charles Dickens. Ada Carance speaking, "Jean Valjean," by Victor Hugo, tied with Helen Graves, who spoke, "Tom Sawyer's Love Affairs" for second place. Both girls are from Viroqua. Judges for the contest were Principal Steiner of Cashton, Miss Maude White of the La Crosse Normal, and Mrs. Bessie Hutchinson of the Normal.

Gerald Smith of Viroqua, tied with Neil Pilcher of Sparta for first place in the boys' oratorical contest which was held at Sparta. Those two will represent the league at the district contest which will be held at the Normal school May 7.

STORK REJUVINATES POLICE DEPARTMENT WITH THREE BABIES

"Mr. Stork" wants La Crosse to raise her own policemen.

Last month he worked overtime. Chief of Police J. B. Webber consequently has two applications for new patrolmen and one for a "police woman."

The three youngest members of the department all arrived in the short space of twenty-seven days. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rick, 1415½ Johnson street; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ashland, 1428 Caledonia street, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McDonough, 1130 Vine street.

Patrolman Rick is the father of a boy, born March 9; Patrolman Ashland also is bragging of a son, born March 25, while "Tom" McDonough wants his daughter to be a police woman.

JURY LIST DRAWN FOR CIRCUIT COURT

Jury commissioners today completed the petit jury venire for the May term of circuit court here. No cases requiring a grand jury being on the calendar, it was not necessary for one to be drawn.

Jurymen who will serve follow: C. N. Hawley, Carl Swanson, E. Hodus, A. F. Acker, Paul Dolan, S. J. de Ranitz, August Anderson, J. F. Saltz, Charles Stangl, J. Augdahl, C. F. Calloway, P. Dagendish, Oscar Husing, Hardy Dennison, W. L. Dittman, A. A. Fessler, C. S. Leinfelder, William Buchner, H. F. Lucas, M. C. Merman, J. H. Smith, J. B. Murray, Frank Dockendorff, J. P. Wehrer, M. Raabik and J. D. Vaughn, La Crosse; Otto Kirmse, West Salem; Fred Holthaus, Arthur Nettleman and George Roellig, Onalaska; Joseph Utshy, Peter Quall, Holland, Edward Holberg, Farmington; George Lovejoy, Hamilton; and John Walters, Barre.

Attention Knights of Pythias. All members Knights of Pythias are invited to attend the funeral of the late Bro. John D. Wilson.

Will assemble at Castle hall, 504 Main street, at 2:00 p. m. Sunday, April 25, 1915.

John P. Linton Lodge No. 27, K. of P. P. J. YERLY, C. C.

OPEN BIDS FOR $34,000 CONTRACTS

Bids for paving contracts aggregating $34,000 were opened today in the office of the board of public works. The bidders were Thomas G. Woolley, the La Crosse Construction company, the Western Construction company and Joseph J. Fiebig. Contracts will be awarded at 2 o'clock Monday.

STATE APPEALS THAW CASE.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Harry K. Thaw's joy over the granting of a jury trial to test his present mental status was short lived, when he learned today that Attorney General Woodbury would ask for a stay of execution from the appellate court on Judge Hendrick's order.

That the argument of whether Judge Hendricks had the power to order a jury trial may even reach the court of appeals is not considered improbable.

PITTINGER MUST PAY UP

Judge E. C. Higbee today ordered the arrest of Raymond Pittinger, Sparta, for the non-payment of $100 alimony allowed his former wife, Mrs. Martha Pittinger. Judge Higbee granted Mrs. Pittinger a divorce in 1911. An affidavit introduced by Attorney Z. Rice, sparta, counsel for Mrs. Pittinger, says that Pittinger told his former wife that he would go to jail before he would pay her the alimony.

BIG FIRE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Mass., April 24.—Scores of persons had narrow escapes when fire broke out in a three story wooden building occupied by a leather firm and rapidly spread to eight surrounding dwellings in South Boston at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

DAUGHTER WALKS 100 MILES TO ASK FATHER'S PARDON

CHESTER, Ill., April 24.—The board of pardons today is considering a pardon for Salmon Abbott, sentenced to the pen for murder. If Abbott wins freedom he will have his 15 year old daughter Ruth to thank.

Ruth yesterday told the pardons board she had suffered cruel treatment from her step-mother and step-brothers and sisters and from playmates who twitted her for being the daughter of a convict.

"I can't stand it," cried the girl. "You'll have to let Daddy out."

"How did you come all this distance? It's nearly a hundred miles, isn't it?" asked one of the members.

"I walked," said the girl.

GRADE SCHOOLS TO COMPETE FOR PLATFORM HONORS

Arrangements are completed for the annual grade school declamatory contest which will be held at the high school April 30, under the auspices of the Lincoln Douglas Debating society of the high school. A large banner will be awarded to the winner of first place which will become the permanent property of the school whose representative wins it. All grade schools in the city having seventh and eighth grades will be represented by one speaker at the contest.

In past years this contest has been always well attended by the grade students as a keen rivalry exists between the various schools. Last year every seat in the high school auditorium was filled and in many cases there were two in a seat. Enthusiasm was high and cheering intense.

Week Financial

BANK STATEMENT. NEW YORK, April 24.—The weekly actual bank statement today showed the following changes: Surplus, increased 12,977,050. Loans, increased 10,283,000. Reserve increased 12,377,000. Reserve in federal banks increased 1,256,000. Reserve in other depositories increased 1,671,000. Net demand deposits increased $12,828,000. Circulation increased $152,000. Aggregate reserves $570,278,000.

(Copyright, 1915, by the New York Evening Post.) NEW YORK, April 24.—Possibly because a strong "week-end closing" is considered to be effective, in drawing the outside public's orders, today was marked by a number of sharp advances on the stock exchange. Much of the market's attention was paid to scattered industrial stocks; in which there occurred a few advances of 4 or 5 points, but many of the standard shares also rose a point or more.

The movement had no relation to anything in the news or rumors. Discussion of the uncertain fiscal position of one or two hard luck western railways, which may be a topic of next week, was neglected as out of the spirit of the day. Interborough Metropolitan shares reflected distaste of the plan for re-financing.

NOTICE. To all members of the Modern Woodmen of America: All members of the Modern Woodmen of America are requested to meet at Linker hall at 1:15 p. m. Sunday to attend the funeral of our brother John D. Wilson.

PER ORDER OF THE COUNCIL. "HIGH" GETS A "WRITEUP"

An article appears in the May issue of the Industrial Arts Magazine, published at Milwaukee, describing the Hixon Manual Training school at the La Crosse high school. The article is illustrated with cuts of the school and is closely detailed. C. D. Brower, of the local school, furnished material for the article.

CRAIG TURNER GOES HOME

Craig, the seventeen year old son of Mrs. W. J. Turner, was removed Thursday to his home, 1424 Vine street from the Lutheran hospital, where he had been confined for several months.

"You're Out!" Is
The Old Familiar
Cry At The High

You're out!" was heard for the first time in a real baseball game on the high school campus this year yesterday after school when the Normal Physical Education team met and defeated the high school seniors by a score of 11 to 4. The game was four on both sides as might be expected of the first game of the year. Many errors were made on both sides and in most cases runs came in on errors.

Batteries for the seniors were: Cushman and Roche, for the Normals; Layman and Wachter.

None are so virtuous as those who refuse to see their own vices.

Can't anything stop those Philly Phils? When the world's best fails, it looks bad. They've won eight straight now.
Mr. On-Again-Off-Again-Finnegan has nothing on the Brooklyn and Newark Feds. They're taking turns at leading the parade in Gilmore's loop.

HEINIE ZIM GETS HORSESHOE WREATH

Heinie Zimmerman of the Cubs is very scrappy and has lots of trouble with the umpires. He is popular with the fans, however, as this horseshoe wreath, presented to him in Chicago the other day, would seem to indicate.

TWO PLAYERS RELEASED

PITTSBURGH, April 24.—It became known yesterday that "Syd" Smith, catcher, and Jesse Altenburg, outfielder, had been released by the management of the Pittsburgh National league baseball club just before the game. Smith was released unconditionally.

Suspension Bridges.

There is no doubt that the first idea of a suspension bridge was suggested to primitive man by the interlacing of tree branches and peristaltic plants across rivers. Probably monkeys used them before men did. In very mountainous countries, such as Tibet and Peru, they have apparently been used since the dawn of history, possibly earlier.

you imagine a miner saying mining should not be made a means of earning a living? We thought so.

The White Sox only got five hits—two were doubles, two were triples and the Sox won. Jacques Fournier collected both triples.

Twenty-eight hits enlivened the proceedings in the Brookfield-Newfed game. Four doubles and three triples were included, along with seven stolen bases and numerous other swell performances.

Only two innings were played in the Chi-fed-Kawfed game, but those two were costly for Joe Tinker. Jimmy Smith, his phenom young shortstop, had a hand spiked, necessitating Joe's working himself.

Larry Chappelle, for whom Charley Comiskey parted with $18,000 two years ago, made his debut yesterday as a pinch hitter. No, he didn't hit.

George Stallings can't manage a team of stars—he must of necessity take on a few castoffs. Now he has signed Dick Egan, one time Dodger.

THE TEAMS ARE OFF ON ANOTHER CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON AT LEAGUE PARK

THE ATHLETES AND NELSONS CLASH IN OPENER TOMORROW

City Teams Will Inaugurate
1915 Season with Big Game at Park
Sunday

MAYOR THROWS FIRST BALL
Bell and Squiers Are Picked as Opposing Pitchers for the Fray; Big Crowd
Expected

The probable lineups for tomorrow's game:

ATHLETES

Layman, left field.
Rogstad, second base.
Williams, third base.
Krause, center field.
Horn, shortstop.
Tanke, right field.
Wuest, first base.
Satek or Weeks, catcher.
Bell, pitcher.

NELSONS

Evenson, right field.
Roeder, shortstop.
Kabat, third base.
Childers, catcher.
Wall, first base.
Hackner, second base.
King, center field.
Squiers, Sickles or King, pitcher.

The time has come when La Crosse baseball fans are preparing for their formal appearance in the role of rooters. The day is not far off when the athletes of the city will be cavorting around the field in the glory of the open and a game of really truly baseball. That day is tomorrow.

When the ump calls "Play Ball" tomorrow, nine men, representing the Nelsons of La Crosse, will take their places in the field. And Ken Layman, Normal school student, lead off man for the Athletics will take his stand at the plate and await the first delivery of old Chalky Squiers, the grand old man of baseball in La Crosse, the hero of more baseball games in recent years than any other man in La Crosse. And then it will start.

Mayor Throws First Ball

Mayor A. A. Bentley will throw the first ball. His honor will be the guest of honor of the occasion, having a prominent position in the grandstand.

Managers Optimistic

Managers William Krause and Theodore Comeau today were more than optimistic. They were jubilant. And each, of course, expects his team to win. "Leave it to me," chants Bill and right back at him comes the thrust of Comeau, "Measure our smoke tomorrow."

"The men have in practice during the last two weeks displayed the best form of any semi-professional team I have ever seen," Comeau said today. "The men are like lightning on the bases and their batting has been good. They seem to have already caught the knack of working together. They are confident of winning tomorrow's game."

As for the Athletics," said Manager Krause, "there is but one thing to say—that they are going out on to the field determined to win. And I guess that they stand a pretty good chance. Many of the stars of the city are in the lineup, which speaks well for the chances of the team."

Bell to Start for Athletics

Bell and Satek are the selections of Krause for the opening tilt of the year. Merritt, who last year played considerable ball in Canada, has convinced Krause this spring that he has the real stuff. Satek, last year's catcher of the Clothiers, will start behind the bat, with Russell Weeks, with the Eagles last year, a likely substitute.

Squiers on Mound

Chalky Squiers, last year's mainstay of the Nelsons' pitching staff, will start for the Athletics. A winter spent in the wilderness around Richmond, Minn., seems not to have harmed in the least his ability to lop 'em over. Receiving his delivery will be Jack Childers, veteran of many seasons, who last year played a great game behind the bat and with the stick.

Artificial Butter.

Margarine, the first artificial butter, was made at Poissy, in France, in 1880, for the first time. It was made from the fat of the kidneys and loins of cattle. Tallow, lard and olive and cottonseed oil are also used in the manufacture of various butterines. Coconut butter is largely used in northern Europe.

Indian Motorcycle

It is the predominant all-round machine—the crowning achievement of a company known the world over for the superiority of its product and its strict adherence to all principles fostering progress.

Strength, speed, and power are manifest in all its graceful outlines. Its great charm lies in its ability to easily surmount the hardest adverse road-riding, hill-climbing, mountain-touring conditions. If it's a rideable road, boulevard, path, or trail, the Big Twin will negotiate it, the CRADLE SPRING FRAME, an exclusive Indian feature, absorbing all shocks and vibrations.

Over 100,000 enthusiastic riders joy in its possession. 9 big, new innovations and 20 detail refinements assure its continued superiority during 1915. The Big Twin three-speed Indian marks the highest attainment in the evolution of multi-speed gears.

Good Advice About Oilcloth.

After washing oilcloth and linoleum, be sure to dry it properly. If left damp it will speedily rot and soon become totally ruined. It is a great mistake to use too much water for washing it. The cloth should be wrung out and passed lightly over the surface.

Consistory Again To be Postponed

The consistory which it was expected Pope Benedict XIV would set for the fortnight after Easter, was postponed till the end of May, and rumors reach this country that it is more than likely to be again postponed to early June. Reasons given for putting off of the dates are the war, and the occupation of the pope in peace plans. Two reasons for the consistory are given in the word that comes from Rome. One is the necessity to bring the number of cardinals up to about sixty-five or sixty-six, and strengthen the Italian proportion in the college. The other reason is the delivery of an allocation relating to peace.

Brethren Dedicate New Building at Dayton

The United Brethren have just dedicated in Dayton a new headquarters building, and the entire denomination is rejoicing over a publication plant that is claimed to be the most complete and up to date of any belonging to any religious body. There was in Dayton a United Brethren building, a tall stone structure not long in use, but its shape and location rendered it an easy mark for the flood that damaged Dayton a year or two ago. The new structure is some blocks away from the old one, and quite different in make up. The new plant is a four story concrete edifice, so big that its floor space is reckoned by the acre, and so complete that everything that can be done by printing presses for a religious body can be done here. At the dedication all of the bishops, many of the pastors and throngs from the Ohio churches of the denomination were present. All Dayton extended congratulations. The claim is made that the new structure cannot suffer from floods. Removal from old to new plant is being made gradually. The publication feature of this denomination reports having recovered from the heavy damage of the flood in remarkably short time.

United Brethren form a religious body of 300,000 members, strongest in Ohio and in the middle west to Minnesota, with considerable strength in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Indiana. In doctrine they are practically the same as the Methodists, and their form of government is not unlike that body. There is, however, a strong infusion of the Reformed church, both German and Dutch.

Book Concern Closes A Prosperous Year

The book committee of the Methodist church, just meeting in Los Angeles, heard from the Methodist Book concern, the great publishing house of Methodists, that the year just ended has been sufficiently prosperous to make possible the granting of $300,000 to support aged ministers out of the profits. These profits were made from sales of books, and not from publication of the "Christian Advocate." The concern's reports contains a table of losses, showing varying sums on all of the famous "Advocates" save two. The report indicates a decadence of Methodist journalism, that has been going on for some years.

Concern headquarters are in New York and Cincinnati, the western agency being the larger, with branches in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Pittsburgh and some other centers. Since 1848 sales have exceeded $100,000,000 and now approach $100,000,000 a year. The profits have always gone to worn out preachers. The dividend to them this year is the same as last year, and is the largest in the history of the concern.

Methodists have a movement in hand to secure $10,000,000 for these worn out preachers, the same to supplement sums earned by book sales, and funds raised by district conferences. A convention in the interests of these retired ministers is in session in Chicago on April 25, and succeeding days of the week. Methodist ministers themselves are giving the funds for the expenses of the $10,000,000 campaign and its conventions.

Sound Financial Shape

The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions started last year $292,000 in debt, and two months ago feared it would end it at least $300,000 behind. Instead, it has just closed its year $30,000 ahead, and wiped out all of last year's debt save $102,000. It is planning to go to the General Assembly at Rochester next month prepared to make Presbyterians rejoice over its achievement. The gain in gifts from Presbyterian churches, in war times, was 22 per cent. Gifts from the churches amounted to $903,000. The total sum received last year was $2,287,000 and that raised from gifts, saved from invested income was $2,052,000. These sums break all records and put the Presbyterian Foreign Board ahead of all others in America.

Presbyterian women interested especially in foreign work raised last year $585,000, an increase of $31,000 for the year. The increase in a war year, women and men together, amounted to 8 per cent. In both these boards the expenditures for the year were cut to the sum of $75,000. Of the $292,000 debt coming over from the year previous $160,000 was paid last year. Presbyterians of the south, just closing their books in missionary affairs, make equally favorable reports.

Carlyle on Warfare.

Are not all true men that live, or that ever lived, soldiers of the same army, enlisted under heaven's captaincy, to do battle against the same enemy, the empire of darkness and wrong? Why should we misknow one another, fight not against the enemy, but against ourselves, from mere difference of uniform? All uniforms shall be good, so they hold in them true, valiant men.—Carlyle.

Your "Traveling Home" to California Expositions

Going to California even the most direct way requires days—not hours—long enough for you to experience either restful homelike satisfaction, or restless discomfort—irritation. Make a careful choice of routes—based on Service.

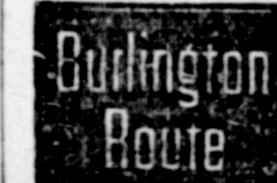

SERVICE is the big individual feature of the Burlington—and travel-wise people know it. The roadbed is smooth, the maximum of safety insured, train equipment the last word in luxury. Berths are like "home beds." The meals are tasty and varied—reasonable in price—and well served. Burlington trains have all the little added features that distinguish modern "limited" travel. And, best of all, Burlington employees are as courteous as they are efficient. They help speed the days—point out and intelligently explain the wonderful country you traverse.

Because of the liberal provisions of the Burlington's Grand Circle Tour, you can stop over at any point. But if you go straight through you arrive refreshed—because of pleasant days and comfortable nights.

This is the tour de luxe—the Burlington's Grand Circle—through glorious Colorado: Denver, the new Rocky Mountain National (Estes) Park, Colorado Springs, Pikes Peak Region, Royal Gorge, by daylight; daylight view of Salt Lake City and Great Salt Lake. Then, Los Angeles, San Diego exposition, and the Panama-Pacific. An Ocean trip by steamer to Portland; the great Pacific Northwest. And homeward bound via Glacier National Park or Yellowstone Park.

EIGHTH EPISODE. Her Husband's Enemies.

CHAPTER I.

THE beautiful runaway bride opened her eyes in dazed bewilderment, to find herself gazing up into the dark, handsome face of the black Vandyked man! She was in his arms! She felt another clasp about her—the man with the white mustache. Gilbert Blye gently released his hold of her, and the white mustached man turned to carry her up the hill. Her eyes closed again.

Gilbert Blye, freed of his beautiful burden, hurried up the embankment to where his luxurious limousine stood by the side of the broken rail. As he jumped into the driver's seat and put his foot on the clutch and his hand on the brake he glanced down at the scene of the accident. The taxi leaned against a sturdy tree, which had stopped it from a fatal tumble. Blye's chauffeur, the wide featured Scatt, was bringing up the unconscious driver of the taxi. The vivacious brunette and the heavy man with the thick lidded eyes were helping Mrs. Villard. That gentle faced woman had insisted upon walking, but she came with a painful limp, and her face was drawn and white. Blye started the car forward with a jerk, turned it dexterously in the narrow road and, jumping down, arranged the cushions with a swiftly certain hand.

When June again opened her eyes Blye was brushing back her soft brown hair from her pale forehead, but he was not holding her. She was in the luxurious limousine, with her head pillowed on the shoulder of the white mustached man, Orin Cunningham, and his arm was about her. She straightened as she became aware of that clasp, and Blye, his black eyes glowing down upon her, smiled reassuringly. The car started, and she turned to look at Mrs. Villard, who sat beside her with compressed lips. The injured taxi driver was up in front, supported by the heavy lidded man. The runaway bride closed her eyes again and sank back into the support which she so much detested.

Blye! How much he had been in her life since she had run away from Ned! And little did June know that Ned, through his detective, had obtained the number of the auto in which she had driven that day. The number was M907707.

Honoria Blye received a telephone message from Bill Wolf a few hours after the time of the auto accident.

"Your husband has gone to his club," he said huskily.

The wife drove hastily to the club entrance. She met Wolf, who pointed to the chauffeur Scatt, saying:

"There's your husband's driver."

Honoria saw Scatt standing beside her husband's limousine.

"I'd like to make you a little present," said Honoria in sugared accents, and, fumbling in her pocket-book, she produced a bill.

Scatt turned to her with alacrity, and every line in his broad, low face widened.

"Now you'll tell me where Mr. Blye was this evening, won't you?" she wheedled.

The smile faded from Scatt's lips.

"Aren't you going to tell me?" And the voice rose another notch.

No answer.

"Give me back that money!" she screamed.

There were thirty-seven lights to be counted before the perspective merged in a blur. Scatt calmly inspected them all in deep absorption, but during the entire time that one narrow slit of an eye had a dancing gleam in it.

Honoria scowled back at the imposing entrance to the club. The doors stood wide open. Inside the tessellated vestibule were stiffly uniformed attendants. Beyond was a marble columned hall, and at the end of that, through an arched opening, was a paneled screen.

Suddenly Honoria dashed up the steps which no woman had ever trod and before any one could stop her had rounded the paneled screen and stood in the grill room, amid a wilderness of oaken tables, at nearly all of which sat men busy sending curling wreaths of incense toward the high gilded ceiling.

There were glasses before most of the men, and a dense and painful silence pervaded the place, although as Honoria had rushed through the hall she had heard the loud babble of animated conversation. The men in that club were turned to speechless clay at the sight of this fuming apparition.

"There you are!" she screamed, and as her gaze settled from its swift roving into a fixed direction one man came to life and rose—the black Vandyked Gilbert Blye. "There you are!" she screamed again, and she started to twist her way among the tables toward her long lost mate. "You will stay away from home, eh! You will run around with other women! You will!"

A door in the corner opened and closed, and Gilbert Blye was on the other side of it! A fat man laughed. Honoria Blye turned on them all and began to tell them just what she thought of their club. A half dozen attendants regained consciousness and crowded round her. One of them, indulging in soothing talk, accidentally laid his hand on her sleeve, and she left four red lines on his face. For the first time in its dignified history that club resounded with the shrill echoes of a confirmed scold. The chuckling fat man achieved an inspiration. He came up and said confidentially:

"Your husband is slipping out of the basement."

When Honoria reached the imposing entrance she was just in time to see Scatt slamming the door of the luxurious limousine, and as that brilliantly lighted car sped down the street with Gilbert Blye reclining comfortably amid the soft cushions a peal of laughter filled the block.

Honoria sprang into her electric coupe and, turning on all the "juice," wheeled down the street in mad pursuit. But at last she gave up the chase and went home.

A nurse with pink cheeks awakened June in the morning, and as the patient opened her eyes the two pretty girls smiled their appreciation of each other.

"How are you this morning?" asked the nurse, preparing to put a thermometer between June's red lips.

"Perfectly well, thank you," laughed June, tossing her waving brown hair back from her shoulders as she raised up. "How is Mrs. Villard?"

"A slight sprain," explained the nurse brightly. "She will be able to go home in time for dinner this evening. My, but you folks had a lucky accident! You must lie down until the doctor comes."

"I'm going to get up," announced June.

"Against orders. My dear, you must stay in bed until Dr. Remert says you may get up."

"Is he the one with the funny red sideburns?" and June looked down over the plain, coarse white nightgown in which she had been put to bed.

"Where are my clothes?"

"You're not ready for them," and the pretty nurse smiled in triumph. "Come in!"

This last was in answer to a knock on the door, but before it could open June had hopped back into bed with one spring. She and the pretty nurse were laughing at each other in the sheer light heartedness of youth when the doctor with the funny red sideburns came in.

He was a jovial doctor, and a very nice doctor indeed. He felt June's pulse, and looked at her tongue, and prodded her a few times, and examined her bones, talking to her all the while as if she were a little girl about ten years old.

"Now I am going to get up," proclaimed June as soon as the doctor had gone away, and she swung her pink feet out of bed again. "Where are my clothes?"

"I'll get them for you." And the pretty nurse turned cheerfully to go.

"Oh, no; wait a minute!" June's big eyes were sparkling. "Please let me try on one of your uniforms."

The pretty nurse dimpled as she admired her pa-grinned back at him. She was a woman of much experience.

"Of course you must not be talked to very long," she agreed. "And you should have a nurse with you to take care of you." She looked at June a moment; then her eyes twinkled. "I think I'll leave this one."

"Much obliged." And the man turned his cheerful grin to June, who sat down primly at the head of the bed.

The man sank back when the head nurse left and looked as feeble as he could. His nurse was smoothing the pillows when the door opened, and there came in a large, heavy jawed woman, with a long ostrich feather on her hat, half a dozen cheap rings on her fingers and two buttons hanging loosely on her coat, one by a single thread.

"Well, well, Joel!" she said in a heavy voice, and she stared at June. "Didn't I always tell you you'd get it?" She bent over and kissed her husband as a matter of propriety. "Hurt you much?"

"Something fierce!" huskily murmured Joe and half closed his eyes.

"Tough luck!" said the woman. "You wouldn't take out that accident insurance I wanted you to, and now I suppose I can starve."

"Oh, well, you ain't done it yet!" objected the man, his tone losing some of its feebleness. "I guess you can get along till I can get out of this. I give you every cent I ever make."

"I guess that's a lot!" And the woman sat down with a thump.

"Thirty dollars last week."

"And how much the week before?"

"Well, it was a rotten week." And the man turned his eyes toward June, who looked steadfastly out of the window. There being no help from that quarter, he proceeded in helping himself. "You got enough to run you for ten days. You know you have. Come on, Alice, be sociable."

"Oh, I can come on all right, and I can be sociable all right, but suppose you don't get out of here in ten days! Then what do I do? Starve, I guess! Say, how do you come to be in a private room?"

It in the man's mouth, put a hand at the back of his neck and gently forced him down.

"The time is up," she crisply told the woman. Her voice was low and soft, and the visitor puzzled afterward as to how it could be so effective without shouting. June went to the door and opened it, aware that the eyes of Joe were fixed on her in undying gratitude.

The woman looked doubtfully at her husband, but the figure at the door was so inflexible that she succumbed to discipline.

"Well, so long, Joe," she said. "See if you can't get your money for that drive by the time I come again." She waved a wifely hand at him and stalked out. She turned to June in the hall. "If the fellow that's putting up for this room will give Joe the money instead we'll be a lot better off."

June was so shocked at the cold callousness of this speech that she could only dumbly nod her head, and she walked down to the nurses' little desk at the end of the hall, leaving the woman to find her way out alone. Joe, the chauffeur, lay, cheerfully grinning, with the thermometer in his mouth.

Again the everlasting problem—the man, the woman and the money! The runaway bride sat in the vacant chair at the little desk and pondered it all out. This person who nagged, who followed her husband even to the hospital to nag, and whose husband welcomed the hospital because it was a relief from nagging—this woman was the outcome of the custom by which the man, earning, possessed all, and the money he gave to his wife was as a gift. A selfish woman and one without delicacy, such as this nagger, made it her business to get all she could, and the pursuit had become a passion with her. She was like those beggars who continue to beg after they have become rich by it, begging from the force of habit and from the love of the art of making people give and from the sordid desire to possess. It was wrong, all wrong, somewhere! June shuddered as she remembered this wife going through her husband's pockets, and then she recalled her dream of herself standing before Ned as a piteous pauper, holding out her hand for alms. She had been right, she decided, as she had decided time and again. She had acted wisely in running away before she had committed herself to charity and before any barriers had been set between their love. She must earn her own way—

Mercy! June sprang from her chair and ran to

The voice stopped abruptly. Edwards, Cunningham, Tommy Thomas and Mrs. Villard were all listening intently. Mrs. Villard seemed troubled. Tommy Thomas, with devilry in her eyes, was laughing at Cunningham, who seemed uncomfortable. The round headed Edwards sat slowly nodding as he looked at Blye. Mrs. Villard reached quietly forward and turned the piece of paper on the bed face downward. She seemed even sad.

"Beg pardon," said the pretty nurse, noting the sudden silence, and, slipping in, she put her hand under the sheet and felt of Mrs. Villard's ankle. The entire group was motionless, and there was a strained tension in the room until the nurse went out. She saw Mrs. Villard reaching forward for the piece of paper as she closed the door, and as she walked away she heard Blye's smooth, even voice again.

When June came into Mrs. Villard's room the conversation again stopped abruptly, but the group moved immediately.

"Oh, see the pretty nurse!" hailed Cunningham and June glanced down in embarrassment.

In that moment of her downcast eyes Tommy Thomas and Mrs. Villard, Blye and Edwards, all glared at Cunningham. He flushed and walked nervously over to the window.

"Really the costume is quite becoming to you," he added in a tone he had never used to her before, one of extravagant respect.

"Indeed it is, dear," said Tommy Thomas. She slipped an arm around June's waist protectingly, and Mrs. Villard glanced up at her companion with moist eyes.

"Well, we'll see you later," said T. J. Edwards, with a clumsy attempt at heartiness, and, rising, he bowed to the ladies. "If there's anything I can do let me know." His small eyes roved to June, but there was no patronizingly fatherly glance in them and no disposition to pat her on the shoulder.

June was puzzled. There seemed to be a distinct change in the attitude of all these people toward her. Yesterday they had pursued her with a mocking certainty in which there was an underlying insolence, but now they seemed to have lost that note of overfamiliarity, and she liked the change. Only Blye was the same. His black eyes glowed when they rested upon her, and he still wore his suave smile, though somehow he seemed more frank. June found herself suddenly liking this black Vandyked man. As she turned to smooth Mrs. Villard's pillows the three men exchanged glances, and the suavely smiling Gilbert Blye stroked his black Vandyke. They turned their eyes as by one accord to the beautiful runaway bride.

Ned Warner at the very moment in which Blye and his crowd had changed their tactics toward June was, after interminable red tape, securing the address of the owner of car No. M907707, and, that secured, he hurried out to the beautiful home of Mrs. Villard up the Hudson. He came to it by the lower road, and as he approached the house he saw Marie in the sloping hillside garden. He stepped in the shelter of the wall to consider. A few days ago his first impulse would have been to rush up to Marie and seize her and compel her to tell what she knew, but Marie had proved herself to be a slippery customer. She had denied knowing Ned on his first meeting with her after the runaway; she had denied knowing earnest and eager and black Aunt Debby when that faithful servant of June's mother had happened upon Marie in the market, and only yesterday Marie had run away from the entire family, taking June's collie, Bouncer, with her. There was little to be gained from Marie. If Ned were able to force himself in and search the house June would be hidden by some one or be helped to escape, as had happened yesterday at the Widow O'Keefe's and also at the Bond Securities building and everywhere else. So there was but one thing to do—to conceal himself about the grounds until June herself should appear. He adopted that course, and the weary hours dragged on, noon, afternoon, evening.

With the dusk the luxurious limousine of Gilbert Blye left the hospital, and in its brilliantly lighted comfort sat the precious June and Mrs. Villard, Tommy Thomas, Orin Cunningham and Gilbert Blye. Strange what a difference this day had made in June's feeling toward these people. They liked her. If their views of life were not her views she could keep her own. They seemed to have discovered that she meant to retain her ways of thinking and living, and it was so much nicer since they had apparently acknowledged this. Now her work as companion to Mrs. Villard would be much more pleasant. They were chatting in gay comradeship as they drew near the Villard home.

Ned Warner as the shades of night drew in ventured into the Villard garden and nearer the house. As he crept up toward the back porch the door opened, and June's collie came bounding out for an evening run. Bouncer had no sooner hit the open than he gave a loud yelp and came tearing straight in Ned's direction. He jumped mad circles around Ned, leaped upon him, barking his loudest welcome, ran halfway up to the house, ran back to bark his joy at Ned again and started to bring Marie!

He had no need to go all the way. Marie had come out on the rear porch to see what was the matter with Miss June's pet, and the lights from the house glistened on her high cheek bones and liberal supply of gums.

Ned had stepped back among the bushes with the hope of edging himself over to the wall before Marie could arrive. To his surprise, however, Marie, though she looked down in that direction, did not come. She called Bouncer, and together they went into the house. Ned took advantage of Marie's indifference and of Bouncer's confinement to slip closer and look in at the windows, front, side and rear. The lower floor was brightly illuminated, and the front porch light was lit, as if some one were expected. June! Some instinct told Ned that she was coming. He concealed himself behind the shrubbery near the porte-cochere and waited.

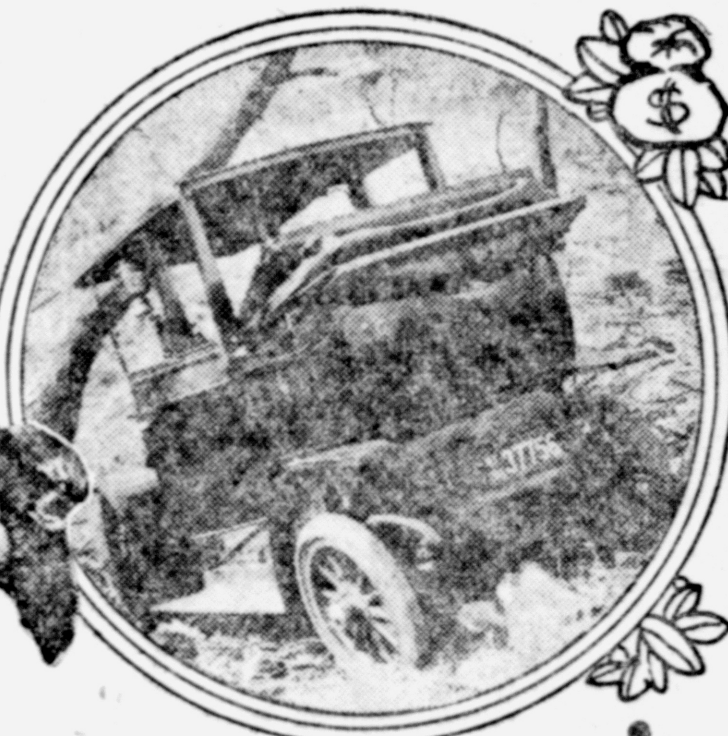

Suddenly he involuntarily tensed himself. Wheels were approaching. Then a brilliantly lighted limousine sped into sight, and as it turned the curve Ned saw in it his beautiful runaway bride. Over her was bending the dark, handsome face of the black Vandyked Gilbert Blye, his eyes glowing and on his lips that despicable smile.

With an oath Ned stepped forward. At last his moment had arrived. Within another instant as Gilbert Blye helped June from the limousine Ned would have the scoundrel by the throat.

tient. June would look "fetching" in nurse's clothing. There could be no question of that, but she shook her head.

"I'm afraid it wouldn't be permitted."

"Just to try it on," begged June. "Let's ask the head nurse."

It seemed a tremendously daring thing to do.

"I wouldn't risk it." And the pretty nurse puckered her brows. Suddenly her face cleared. It was as if the sun had popped out on a rainy day. "Yes, I can! Mrs. Wade is on duty this morning. For a minute I thought it was Miss Simmons."

Mrs. Wade was a smiling woman—smiling lips, smiling eyes, and it seemed as if her hair smiled—but she was dubious about the uniform.

"It would be a radical infraction of the rules," she declared, with an absurd attempt at severity, "but we'll ask Dr. Remert not to tell."

They all three laughed at that, and within a few minutes June was in a stiff white uniform, with a prim little cap on her head, and was walking sedately into Mrs. Villard's room. She paused on the threshold. Gilbert Blye was there! As he caught sight of her June saw the glow of admiration leap into his black eyes. She half turned to go in her embarrassment, but Mrs. Villard stopped her.

"Come here, you pretty thing!" she called, and as June shyly came to the bedside Mrs. Villard laughed, and Blye joined her.

Dr. Remert came in and expressed his profound astonishment at how grownup June looked in a uniform and tweaked the pink ear lobe which peeped from beneath the trim little cap. The head nurse and the nurse with the pink cheeks and the phenomenally thin nurse crowded in to admire June; then Dr. Remert scattered them, so that Mrs. Villard should have some rest before her next bandaging, and he took June with him for a round of the wards. He gave her a thermometer to carry, so she should look useful as well as ornamental.

She came back from that round of the wards rather thoughtfully. She had seen so much pain and sorrow and suffering, and children and men and women and men who should have been strong, and in the light of all their woes her own problem seemed foolish and insignificant.

In Mrs. Villard's room as June approached the door she heard voices, among them Orin Cunningham's. She turned away and went across the hall to the room where the injured chauffeur lay. He was in considerable pain, the pretty nurse said, but he lay there smiling, with great cheerfulness upon his roughly molded countenance.

"I guess I'll be laid up for a week or ten days," he stated, with a grin.

"That's a long time to be confined in a narrow little room," sympathized June.

The head nurse brought her bit of sunshine into the room.

"How are you feeling?" she asked.

"Bully!"

"Then you can probably stand a pleasant surprise," smiled Mrs. Wade. "You have a visitor."

"Oh!" The sunshine left the roughly molded face, but the grin was back in a minute. "Say, tell her the doctor says I ain't to be talked to long. And can't one of you nurses stay here to make it strong?"

His grin was so confiding that the head nurse

She looked at June and sniffed. "And with a private nurse!"

"The good sport that picked us up put me here."

The woman surveyed the bare little room. There were no curtains at the windows, no upholstery, no softening graces of any kind on the white enameled fittings, but it had an immense superiority, the cause of which she could not fathom. It was absolutely clean, and she paid an unconscious tribute to that phenomenon.

"Why, it's better than I got it at home!" she complained. The man turned his head over and back again, but he said nothing.

"Say," the woman went on, "the fellow that spent the money for this room and the private nurse would have done better to let you go in the public ward and give you the money for your wife!"

June, at the window, moved impatiently.

"Nurse," said the man, "can you get me my pants?"

June opened the door of the tiny white enameled wardrobe in the corner and brought out the man's trousers, handing them down with the tips of her thumb and forefinger. The woman took them and deftly ran her hands into the pockets.

"Seven fifty-five," she reported and clicked the money into her purse. She hung the trousers in the wardrobe and shut the door. "That'll help a little. Did you get your pay for this drive?"

"Not yet, Alice." And his head rolled restlessly.

"Well, you tell me who it was, and I'll go after it!" She had turned from the wardrobe and was regarding a tray which stood on its folding stand by the wall. She lifted the napkin. "My God!" she exploded. "A hot-house peach! And you didn't eat it all at that! You know what I had for my breakfast? Coffee and sinkers and hash! And here you are living on the fat of the land!"

"Looky here, Alice!" The man had raised up in bed, and there was a twitch of pain at the corners of his lips as he stretched out an oil blackened forefinger.

June whirled from the window with a snap of her big eyes. She still carried the thermometer which Dr. Remert had given her. Now she thrust the room of the chauffeur with a sudden violent wrench of her conscience. Joe lay there quite cheerfully with the thermometer still in his mouth, and he grinned as well as he could after twenty minutes of this exercise. When June removed the thermometer that side of his face remained twisted and puckered for some time, and it ached, but he was perfectly happy. He could be alone for twenty-four hours!

CHAPTER II.

THERE was a consultation in Mrs. Villard's room. Tommy Thomas sat at the head of Mrs. Villard's bed. T. J. Edwards, the heavy man with the thick lidded eyes, sat on the other side in stolid silence. Cunningham leaned negligently on the foot of the bed. Before Mrs. Villard lay a picture of June clipped from a Bryn Mawr paper on the day of her marriage to Ned Warner. Tommy Thomas had just found it and had brought it with her. Cunningham picked up the picture and looked at it with twinkling eyes, smoothing his white mustache complacently. Gilbert Blye, sitting in the far corner on the window sill, with his Vandyke in his long, lean, white hand, suddenly rose and, walking over to Cunningham, took the picture from him and laid it on the bed.

The pretty nurse with the pink cheeks opened the door presently and heard these words in Blye's suave but forceful tones:

"The thing to do is to gain her confidence. There must be a complete change of method."

SPOTLIGHTS

LA CROSSE PLAYERS
Sunday afternoon the La Crosse Theater Players will resume their engagement at the La Crosse theater and will present for the first time at popular prices the great labor comedy drama, "Love and Politics." A pretty love story intermingled with a hard political fight makes this a great play, with a heart interest that adds greatly to the intensely gripping dramatic situations.

MAUDE ADAMS
Of all the combinations that the stage has had of recent years there has been no more successful one than that of Maude Adams, the popular actress, and James Matthew Barrie, the gifted author. The combination began when the dramatist gave the actress "The Little Minister," and it has afforded infinite pleasure to countless theater goers since then. The combination is to be very much in evidence at the La Crosse theater April 28, during which time Miss Adams is to appear in a revival of "Quality Street." The presentation here will have all the air of novelty for the comedy has never been seen in this city. Once there was a promise that Miss Adams would give the play here, but something turned up at the last minute which prevented its fulfillment.

Those who have found pleasure in Barrie's other works will discover him in a most delightful mood in "Quality Street." To begin with he takes one back to rural England at a time when Napoleon menaced its shores and England and Germany were allied against the disturber of the peace of Europe.

It is a quaint play, is "Quality Street," and there hangs about it and its charming characters the faint odor of lavender. It has been said that Miss Adams has never given a more finished portrait of any of Barrie's heroines than she has of Phoebe of the ringlets. It is a portrait that is finely lined and capital, carried out in its details.

The comedy is in four acts, one of which takes place at a military ball. Surrounding Miss Adams is a number of well known players including Charles Hammond, Fred Tyler, R. Peyton Carter, Stafford Windsor, Morton Sellen, Elise Clarens, Leonore Cheppendale, Angela Ogden and Sarah Conzone.

The Keys of the Universe.

In the year 1694 William Patterson, founder of the Bank of Scotland, conceived the grand project of planting on the isthmus of Darien a British colony which, in his own words, "should secure for Great Britain the keys of the universe, enabling their possessors to give laws to both oceans and to become the arbiters of the commercial world." This colony was actually founded at a place still known as Puerto Escondido, but its people were subsequently forced by the Spaniards to evacuate and return to Scotland.

HIGH PLACE IN NAVY
FOR REAR ADMIRAL

Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow.

Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow is said to be Secretary Daniels' choice for chief of the bureau of naval operations, a new post created by the recent naval appropriations bill. Admiral Winslow is a nephew of the Winslow who commanded the old Kearsarge at the time of her famous battle with the Alabama. Admiral Winslow has just left Washington for Newport after a series of consultations with Secretary Daniels and Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher. The official announcement of Admiral Winslow's selection for the new post is likely to come soon.

Plan Criminal Action Against Syndicate Which
They Says Has Taken
Million from Poor

NEW YORK, April 24.—Documentary evidence that a syndicate of medical fakery, with headquarters in Chicago and Philadelphia, has taken $1,200,000 from poor people, was in the hands today of Geo. W. Whiteside, counsel for the County Medical society. Whiteside was planning criminal action against the various heads of the syndicate and was also aiding in having stamped out their "medical museums" all over the country.

Whiteside obtained his evidence following the wholesale raids of the New York police a few days ago on fake medical bureaus. He declared he had obtained the full confession of a member of the syndicate—a physician who had been working it for years.

The syndicate completely controlled the fake medical graft throughout the country. Whiteside asserted. The small fakery who sprung up was always absorbed by the syndicate, he says.

GLASS OF SALTS
CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. Chas. A. Benschlag, Druggist, 503 Main St.

GERMAN CRITICISM
OF U. S. UNOFFICIAL

Press Has Been Given Freedom but Expressions Are Disavowed by the Government

TODAY IS VON TIRPITZ DAY

Kaiser and Nation Join in Congratulating Grand Admiral on Fifty Years in the Navy

BERLIN, via The Hague and London, April 24.—Despite the bitter criticism of the United States by German newspapers for refusing to end the traffic in munitions it is semi-officially explained that this does not represent the real views of the German government. The censor has been instructed to permit the newspapers frankly to express themselves on this subject and on Secretary Bryan's reply to the von Bernstorff note, but it has been emphasized that their views reflect popular opinion and the editorial side of the matter, not the government. Because of this even the semi-official newspapers make it plain that they are not reflecting what has been told them at the foreign office and the war department.

This was Von Tirpitz day. It marked the anniversary of the grand admiral's entrance in the imperial navy fifty years ago, and was also the eighteenth anniversary of his entrance into the ministry. The admiral, who spent the day at his desk, was overwhelmed with congratulations. These came from all over Germany, headed by his majesty.

In connection with the observance of the day the admiralty declared the North sea clear of the enemy's warships. It is believed here that a serious naval conflict is likely in the near future. It is hinted that when it comes Britain will receive a surprise in the character of warships that she meets.

ARMOUR DEFENDS
PACKING INDUSTRY

J. Ogden Armour.

J. Ogden Armour, head of the Armour packing concern, took the stand before the U. S. Commission on Industrial Relations, now sitting in Chicago, and defended the packing industry from the charges made against it by John C. Kennedy, newly elected Socialist alderman of Chicago. Armour disagreed with Kennedy's statement that only a labor union could remedy evils at the yards, declaring that the packing companies have the best interests of the men at heart as attested by the welfare department maintained by his own company.

SULTAN'S ASSAILANT HANGED

CAIRO, April 24.—Mohammed Khalil, assailant of the Sultan, who unsuccessfully attempted his assassination, was today privately hanged in the prison here.

AN OLD RECIPE
TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

BAGGAGEMAN WOUNDED IN ATTEMPTED TRAIN ROBBERY

Safe of Car is Dynamited And Bandit Escapes in Shower of Bullets—Suspect Arrested at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 24.—Harry Lester of St. Louis, a stone cutter, was arrested here today as a suspect in the attempted holdup of a Louisville and Nashville passenger train in the outskirts of the city last night in which Peter Mossey, baggageman of the train was wounded by the bandit. The safe of the baggage car was dynamited and the bandit escaped amid a shower of bullets. Passengers were not molested. Lester said he had been here only a few weeks and refused to discuss his residence in St. Louis other than to say he had lived there.

FINN STEAMER SUNK

STOCKHOLM, April 24.—The small Finn steamer Frack, with a cargo of iron, has been sunk by a German submarine in the Baltic. It is believed that the crew was saved.

For a Nonskid Stepladder.

In using a high ladder on a polished floor we tried the "safety first" plan of placing underneath its feet two squares of coarse sandpaper glued together, thus giving a grip on both the floor and the ladder.—Good House-keeping Magazine.
